PEKING HAS SCHEME FOR FINANCING OF COUNTRY

Cash Government Needed For China New Year Is In Hand

CHECK ON LOANS

Purpose Outlined Is To Cut Military Outlay By One Half

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Feb. 2.—It is announced that the Government required twelve million dollars to tide it over the Chinese New Year, and that this amount has been secured, half of it from an octroi. It is also stated that the Chinese Bankers' Association has arranged a plan with the Inspectors-General of Customs and the Salt Tax whereby no further domestic loans will be issued while arrangements are being made to raise the money required to meet the interest and amortisation of the domestic bonds already marketed.

It is pointed out that military expenditure at present amounts to four hundred million dollars annually, as compared with one hundred millions under the Manchus.

The Government intends to reduce this expenditure by two hundred millions a year. Revenues under direct control of the Central Government amount to five hundred millions, and the Government would thus have a balance of three hundred millions, which would be sufficient to support the central administration. The Government think the provinces should be self-supporting.

When the domestic bonds have been fully restored and the public convinced that there is to be no further indiscriminate issuing of bonds, the Chinese banks are to issue another loan for which the whole of the Central Government's surplus revenues will be pooled; and this will be used for disbanding the troops.

It is admitted that the Chinese banks are following the lines adopted by the Consortium, and both the Government and the Chinese bankers themselves are optimistic regarding results.

CONSORTIUM MAN LEAVES FOR SOUTH ON CHINA TODAY

Mr. Frederick, W. Stevens, representative of the American group of banks in the Consortium, accompanied by Mrs. Stevens, leaves Shanghai this morning on the China Mail steamer China for Hongkong and Manila. Mr. Stevens stated that his trip has no significance affecting the Consortium plan, but is merely the fulfilment of a plan made many months ago to visit China's Southern metropolis. He expects to extend his Chinese acquaintanceship while in the South and will return to Shanghai about February 18.

Armed Robbers In Bank Hold-Up; One Man Arrested

A gang of armed robbers numbering ten or twelve staged a $2,000 "job" at the Chen Yuen Tah bank, 36A Avenue Edward VII early last evening, getting away with the loot but leaving one of their number in the hands of the police.

The men entered the place shortly after 8 p.m., while a consignment of currency and jewelry was being transferred from the upper to the lower floor. One of the intruders displayed an automatic pistol. A French police constable stationed across the street witnessed the robbery and whistled for aid. A settlement constable responded and, assisted by another C.P.C., arrested the armed man as he left the bank. The others escaped.

The amount stolen was reported as being some $2,000 in cash and an indeterminate quantity of jewelry.

FORMOSANS SEEK SELF GOVERNMENT; SEND IN PETITION

Delegation Say Situation Is Developing Like That In Korea

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Feb. 2.—A delegation of twenty prominent Formosans is now in Tokio to support the petition presented to the Diet for the establishment of local self-government in Formosa.

The spokesman in a public address states that a situation is developing in Formosa similar to that in Korea, the natives misunderstanding the Japanese attitude. Unless a long forward step is taken to remove these misapprehensions, he declares, Japan will be confronted with a grave situation in Formosa.

A member of the Diet, Mr. Tugawa, in presenting the petition said:

"I appreciate the attitude of the petitioners, knowing that conditions exist whereof the Japanese people have no knowledge. I hope the petition will be granted before it is too late."

ROAD TO WUSIH COMMITTEE PLAN; OPENS NEW COUNTRY

The Road Executive Committee of the Good Roads Movement of China met yesterday, Dr. C. T. Wang, chairman, presiding, and formulated plans for the projecting of an automobile road from Shanghai to Wusih. A survey will be made and the road routed so that it will run between the railroad and the sea-coast touching important inland cities that need a means of communication with a port. It will not parallel the railroads or waterways but will open new territory to commerce.

Mr. Bernard Firth, who is acting-director of the China Automobile Association, was made a member of the Exechtive Committee at the meeting yesterday Mr. F. G. Mayers, who is Commissioner of Customs at Chinking and an old resident of China, was a guest. Knowing the country thoroughly, he was able to give some very valuable suggestions. Mr. T. S. Sih came as a guest of Dr. Wang and presented some maps showing different possible routes for a road from Shanghai to Hangchow.

Communication To Manchulie Closed Due To Spread Of Epidemic

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Harbin, Feb. 1.—All railway communication between Harbin and Manchulie is now closed owing to the spread of plague.

It is reported from Hantoheozi station that Chinese soldiers occupied the Russian railway school, rendering the continuation of the children's studies impossible. It is understood that repeated requests have been addressed to the Chinese Command that these soldiers should be ordered to leave, but up to the present these have not been complied with.

Washington, Feb. 1.—State Department officials state that the negotiations between Japan and America will have to be left to the Harding administration for completion, as the solution of this long-standing question will require more time than remains to the present Government.

ALLIES' ACTION ALTERS FINANCE POLICY IN U. S.

MEANS CHANGED TARIFF

New York Bankers Foresee Competition In China For Britain

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 1.—Mr. W. H. Booth, vice-president of the New York Guaranty Trust, interviewed in London, said the American plans for the reconstruction of Europe were based on the expectation of a shorter period for Germany's indemnity payments, and in view of the Paris settlement these plans must now be changed. The credits to European nations must be extended, so as to enable them to pay without any strain.

Another effect of the Paris conference would be an adjustment of the American tariff schedules. The pre-war reasons for protective tariffs had lost much of their force, but America must, he said, be protected against dumping, while new markets must be found by following the British plan of supporting the development of new countries.

FOREIGN CORPORATION

The formation of a foreign trade financing corporation, which had just issued at New York capital stock to the value of £25,000,000, was, said Mr. Booth, the first big step for extending foreign credit. The special law under which it had been organised would permit the issue of debentures to the amount of ten times its capital, which would be sold in small denominations to individual investors in the United States. These debentures would be based on the collateral engendered by the loans abroad for extended periods.

CHINA'S MANUFACTURING

Dealing with trade prospects, Mr. Booth pointed out that China was greatly increasing her manufacturing position, and in his opinion Lancashire in particular would be faced with strenuous competition there.

He declared that Americans did not fear trouble in the Pacific. They would continue in the expectation that the good judgment of the statesmen of the United States and Japan would work out their differences, "which at the worst were not essentially fundamental."

Predicts Recovery Of World's Trade

Revival Awaits Removal Of Present Stocks Of Expensive Goods

(Reuter's Service)

London, February 1.—Mr. F. G. Kellaway, parliamentary secretary to the Department of Overseas Trade, speaking at Preston, said he was hopeful that a recovery of trade would not now long be delayed. Foreign markets had been glutted with dear goods, but these were being steadily disposed of, and the world's hunger for supplies had not been satisfied and was certain to become more urgent.

Hence, he contended, over-production was not as an evil as was sometimes suggested, but production at prices which people could not pay. The great danger was the policy of "ca' canny," which meant high wages and low production, and made prices prohibitive.

SIGNS OF IMPROVEMENT

There are already some signs of an improvement in trade. It is now reported that a number of steel furnaces in Wales have restarted. There is also the latest monthly statement of the Federal Reserve Board in Washington, which says that some plants employing many hands have resumed whole or part-time running. A distinct improvement is reported in some branches of the textile industry, while the preparations to put the financing of American exports on a more satisfactory basis have, the Board declares, laid the foundations of an improvement in the whole export trade.

AUSTRALIA PROSPEROUS

Melbourne, Jan. 31.—Mr. Hughes, the Federal Premier, in the course of a speech, denied the suggestion that Australia was suffering from depression. He pointed to the heavy export of primary products and the increase of deposits in the banks as showing that Australia was one of the most prosperous countries in the world.

COAL CONTROL IN ENGLAND WILL BE REMOVED MARCH 1

Increased Output And Falling Off In Demand Given As Causes

NEW POLICY IN PROSPECT

Action Of Government Likely To Have Some Effect On Prices

(Reuter's Service)

London, February 1.—In view of the increased output, slackened home demand and the fact that export prices are now approximately the same as home prices, the Government has decided to decontrol coal from March 1. All restrictions as regards pithead prices and distribution in the United Kingdom will then be abolished. The position is unchanged as regards foreign bunkers and exports, which are freely allowed, subject only to one slight restriction.

Later.—The decontrol of the price of coal is obviously a step giving effect to the Government's declared policy of releasing industry from bureaucratic control as soon as possible. Control was originally imposed to guard against the shortage of inlaid supplies in consequence of the very high export prices. The latter have now descended to the same or an even lower level than the controlled maximum home prices.

The new order removes the system whereby collieries are prohibited from supplying other than specified districts.

Experts are uncertain as to effects of decontrol. They confidently anticipate that the price of poorer qualities will fall owing to the large available supplies, but the price for the higher grades may increase somewhat. The only remaining restriction on export is that the district coal committees must satisfy themselves that there is no shortage for inland use.

WORLD IS WARNED MORE EPIDEMICS MAY BE EXPECTED

Outlook As Regards Future Pestilences Gloomy, Say Medical Men

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 2.—A report issued by the Ministry of Health furnishes a grav- warning, applicable to all parts of the world, as to the possibility of further epidemics similar to those of 1918 and 1919, which were responsible for more deaths than the whole war.

A number of most eminent medical men state that the world's outlook as regards future pestilences is gloomy.

Throughout this carefully prepared report it is plain that the influenza epidemic remains a "mystery disease," and despite all the experiments and bacteriological tests that have been conducted and other data, medical men are at a loss to define the cause or to offer a cure. They are of opinion that the conditions over wide tracts of the world will be favorable to further epidemics for at least another generation.

SUPERVISION OF CUSTOMS TAKEN OVER IN SOUTH

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Canton, Feb. 1.—The Military Government today assumes the supervision of the Customs within the provinces under its control. So far no unusual action has been taken.

Official information is withheld, but it is not believed that there will be any open rupture so long as the ordinary administration of the Customs service is not interfered with. It is understood, however, that the Customs authorities will not submit to the Military Government's orders if they conflict with existing rules of the service or are contrary to the instructions of the Inspector-General.

Peking, Feb. 2.—Dr. Wu Tingfang has withdrawn from his position regarding taking over the Customs in the provinces controlled by the Canton Government, but asks for certain information concerning the Customs and also for payment of the 13.7 percent of the Customs dues formerly allotted to the Canton Administration.

Diplomatic Corps is considering these requests.

OZAKI HAS BILL TO REDUCE NAVY

Former Japanese Minister Is Convinced Of Sincerity Of America

(Reuter's Service)

Tokio, Feb. 2.—Saying that he is convinced of the sincerity of American sentiment regarding naval reductions the former Minister of Justice, Mr. Ozaki is drafting a bill for partial suspension of the Japanese program which he will present to the Diet, thus forcing action one way or the other.

Japan, he says, is already overtaxed and her only way of escape is through a naval holiday. A great army is more useless than a great navy, and therefore he will later work for reduction of the army. He believes that if all armies and navies were reduced to the standard of 1910 or 1912 this would satisfy everyone.

Prince Welcomed By Brighton Throng

London, Feb. 1.—The Prince of Wales was welcomed by cheering thousands at Brighton today, when he motored to Patcham Downs and unveiled a memorial to the Hindus and Sikhs who perished in the war.

In the course of his speech, he said that in the ordinary course of events, he should now have been in India. Perhaps next year he would meet and speak to the Indians who had been cared for at Brighton.

GERMANY HAS REFUSED TO MEET REPARATION TERMS ALLIES IMPOSED

Foreign Minister In Address Before Reichstag Accepts Disarmament Obligations But Calls Others Impossible

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 1.—The German Government has rejected the terms in regard to reparations laid down by the recent Inter-Allied Conference in Paris.

Berlin, Feb. 1.—Speaking in the Reichstag today, Dr. von Simons, the Foreign Minister, delivered a long criticism of the decisions of the Entente in regard to reparations, and concluded with the following passage:

"Not having yet received any invitation of the London Conference, the Government can neither refuse nor agree to take part in it, but it declares now and at once that it refuses to negotiate on the basis of the decisions of the Entente, and intends to put forward counter-proposals."

The members of the Reichstag attended in large numbers, but a few of them assembled outside to learn the Government's decision.

Dr. von Simons, after a brief historical review, expressed the greatest surprise at the abrupt abandonment of the Seydoux Scheme (M. Seydoux is the French delegate on the Brussels Conference of financial and economic experts) which, he said, was supported by both the British and French representatives.

DEFENDS GOVERNMENT

The Minister went on to defend the Government against the reproach of not having advanced proposals, and recalled that his own proposals at Spa had been described in an Entente note as "the hasty outcome of difficult negotiations."

He declared that the Government would loyally carry out the obligations as regards disarmaments, and communicate with the various State Governments on the subject. He then entered into a lengthy discourse as regards reparations.

Dr. von Simons uttered a warning against "the superstition that more could be obtained from the German people by dictation than by negotiations." The following are the exact words of his declaration, mentioned earlier: "It is impossible to regard the Entente reparations proposals as a basis of negotiations. It will, however, be our duty, despite great difficulties, to make every effort to put forward clear counterproposals."

DEFIES PEACE TREATY

As regards reparations, Dr. von Simons said Germany would have to pay a total of 226,000,000,000 gold marks during 42 years, or over 3,000,000,000,000 paper marks, while the Allies' second demand was that Germany should for 42 years pay 12 percent ad valorem of German exports. Thus it was estimated that one or two thousand millions could be obtained from Germany in the latter way. This statement caused laughter.

The Minister declared that this demand would have been impossible even in the most flourishing days before the war. The whole settlement, he asserted, was obscure, and contained contradictions to the peace treaty. The program, he declared, spelled the complete enslavement of the people, especially the working class.

The ad valorem export tax was unconsciously heavy and injurious, both at home and abroad, and with a rise in the rate of exchange of the mark, these conditions would throttle, the export industry. This was greeted with cries of "quite right."

Dr. von Simons asserted that the Allies could not punish Germany for not accepting the Allies proposals, otherwise it was no longer a "proposal" but an "order." He declared in conclusion that the Allies' threat to refuse Germany admission to the League of Nations was premature, as Germany had not asked for admission. At present the inducement to enter the League was not so great as to counteract the terrors of her not entering.

Herr Hoffmann, a Communist who followed, sharply criticised the minister's statement. His speech was subjected to a great deal of interruption.

The debate was adjourned till today.

AMERICAN PRESS COMMENT

New York, Feb. 2.—The American press, and prominent politicians generally, criticise the German indemnity terms on the ground that the demands made are larger than Germany is able to meet, and are likely to react

O'Joy! Blizzard Fools Ground Hog! Fair Days Coming

YESTERDAY was "Ground Hog Day."

A lot of people referred to it in different terms.

Correct in either case. We never had any elevated opinion of ground hogs anyway.

Industrious inquiry among local old-timers and students of natural phenomena failed to determine whether the ground hog regulation applies to China or not. In the absence of evidence to the contrary let us optimistically assume the enactment in force.

In which event we have the melancholy picture of this malodorous and sleep-drugged rodent dragging itself out of his den yesterday morning for its annual criticism of the weather—and blundering into the atmospheric chaos which prevailed here at the time.

What more harrowing conception can be evolved than that of this forlorn and bedraggled biological symbol sneaking about the Settlements in search of a stray ray of sunlight, and, finally, standing beneath the puerile glow of one of our arc lights in the fatuous hope of seeing its outline projected against the snow?

The weather reporter confesses that he can see nothing but pathos in the incident, but the gentleman at the adjoining desk, who emanates from a place called Massachusetts, jubilantly insists that the facts portend the breaking of Winter and an unbroken sequence of sunny, salubrious days. Which, as they say in Kansas, we hope he's right.

Housing Help For Highland 'Crofters'

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 1.—Better housing conditions for the Highland 'crofter' are promised as the result of a new scheme of financial assistance, combining a subsidy to the crofter by the Scottish Board of Health, ranging from £100 to £130, and loans by the Scottish Board of Agriculture, ranging from £150 to £200 per cottage. The Board of Agriculture will also defray the cost of transit of materials, estimated at £40 per house. The building must be completed within the period applicable to the private builders' subsidy, namely, December next.

Ottawa, Jan. 31.—The monthly Customs receipts of Canada show an increase of $7,000,000 in the last ten months.

NAMES CONFUSED

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Feb. 2.—The mystery of the reported visit to the Far East of Karakhan, the Soviet Commissary for Foreign Affairs, is explained by the visit to Irkutsk of Kalinin, Chairman of the Moscow Congress and official head of the Soviet Government. Telegrams from Siberia confused the two names.

unfavorably on the United States.

The New York World, which is a Wilson organ, contends that the tax on exports will reduce the volume of exports to America and thus prevent the establishment of credits for the purchase of the raw materials necessary to Germany's rehabilitation.

The New York Times says that the real test will come when the Allies attempt to exchange German gold bonds for foodstuffs in America.

The Tribune, which is Republican, however, declares that it is more important for the United States that the Allies recover rapidly than that Germany do so. Judge Gary, in an interview, said that Germany was able to pay, and would pay, with great benefit to the world's commercial situation.

LONDON PRESS COMMENT

London, Feb. 2.—The speech of Dr. von Simons is characterised in the morning press as 'insolent,' while the Reichstag scene is declared to have been a "carefully stage-managed comedy" with a view of furthering Berlin's plan to pay how much and when the German Government pleases.

The counter-proposals will unquestionably be boomed in the German press with a view to demonstrating how incapable the country is to face the Allied financial demands.

Meanwhile, some German industries are by no means in favor of this "never, never" propaganda, foreseeing, with a further depreciation of the mark, inevitable fresh wage demands and labor troubles.

Dr. von Simons' speech is to be regarded as the banging of a big drum with a view to keeping tht door open for fresh negotiations at the London Conference, when the Germans hope to meet the Allies on an equal footing.

Paris, Jan. 31.—Discussing the results of the recent Inter-Allied Conference in an article contributed to the Matin, ex-President Poincare says: "Germany is mistaken if she believes that France is not as resolved as ever to obtain Germany's disarmament and the payment of reparation, but the pretence that France is aiming at the annexation of the left bank of the Rhine, or even at a temporary occupation of further German territory without imperious necessity, is a sheer calummy and gross absurdity."

FRENCH COMMENT CAUSTIC

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Feb. 1.—The Journal des Debats publishes the following comment from the pen of M. Gauvain, on Germany's rejections of the Allies' reparations proposals:

"When the Germans proclaim that it is a material impossibility to pay the total amount of reparations, there is an irrefutable argument which can always be brought up against them. The reconstruction of the devastated regions of France is being carried out at the expense of the French taxpayer: why cannot Germany, whose land is flourishing and whose factories are all working full-blast, make a similar financial effort?

France with nine and a half of her richest departments turned into a desert, has raised domestic loans totaling tens of milliards of francs. Why cannot Germany, whose territory is intact, borrow in order to pay us back?

The real reason is that the German budget is entirely devoted to the recovery of Germany, and that her vast financial assets are employed in speeding up German industrial production. Over a hundred thousand million marks of capital are being utilised to the utmost profit of the Reich, whilst the French taxpayer is emptying his pockets. The annual reparations instalments fixed at the Paris Conference represent only a fraction of the annual profits thus realised by the German capitalists."

DEMAND UNITED FRONT

Berlin, February 1.—The statement to be made by the Foreign Minister in the Reichstag today is awaited with the greatest excitement.

Yesterday's meeting of the Cabinet, which was summoned to consider the Allied Notes embodying the decisions of the Paris Conference, lasted until a late hour, after which it was reported that Dr. von Simons had resigned, but today it is believed that he will retain office.

It is rumored that negotiations are proceeding to induce the Majority Socialists and German National party to enter the Government, in the hope of creating a united front.

FRENCH CABINET SESSION

Paris, February 1.—A Cabinet Council was held this morning at the Elysee, under the presidency, of Mr. Millerand, M. Briand, as Foreign Minister, formally announced the results of the Inter-Allied Conference.

President Millerand expressed his complete satisfaction, and warmly complimented M. Briand and his colleagues on their success. M. Briand notified his intention of making a declaration to the two Chambers of Parliament on Thursday, and he will afterwards confer with the Commissions in order to furnish them with supplementary details.

The Oil and Petrol Department having been demobilised, it was decided that the remaining stocks of these commodities should be disposed of by the Under-Secretary for the Liquidation of Stocks. The Cabinet further decided to continue with the utmost despatch the construction of cheap houses.

The following message was dispatched prior to the foregoing:

The report of Chief Officer M. W. Pett of the Fire Department for 1920 shows that the total loss during the year by fire was under two and half lakhs, being a decrease of over two lakhs on the previous year. There was, however, an increase in the number of fires and the majority of them were of a difficult nature.

Of the calls 219 were genuine fires on assessed property within the settlement, or buildings on municipal roads, while 37 were false alarms, six malicious, or fires not traced by the brigade. Seven calls were received through which were false alarms.

The brigade also attended 59 fires outside the settlement, 39 of which it practically extinguished.

Madame Hsu Shih-chang, wife of the President has donated five thousand dollars to the Ladies' Famine Relief Association, of which she is honorary president. Besides personal work in raising subscriptions among her friends for the Association, Madame Hsu is also arranging with the Ministry of Interior to encourage and recognise the charitable zeal of the ladies by confering special decorations on the deserving.

DONATIONS FOR SHANSI

Rev. Evan Morgan desires to acknowledge, with many thanks, the following gifts to the Shensi Famine Relief funds:

Anonymous--father, mother, daughter, $100; Ed. Evans Senr. $50; Mrs. John Darrach $5; readers of the Chinese Christian Intelligencer, in Australia, per Rev. S. I. Woodbridge, D.D. $1,000.

Rev. A. G. Sohrrock writes: As a result of the generous gifts sent I shall be able to give hope to some of these hopeless ones—These two days many children have been brought to the city from outside—by Christian and non-Christian parents in hope of finding some place of refuge for them in school or orphanage of anywhere until these famine months are over. They cannot see them starve and die.

"We shall be able to care for quite a number in our schools and so give great joy to many anxious parents and children. Three small boys came a few days ago brothers of six other children left at home wanting to find a refuge from want and famine.

"The had walked 30 miles here. The refuge was full and we could not take them—I could only give them some money to go back home with—now however there is the glad possibility of such as these being helped.

"Yesterday two of our members went to a place five miles from here where a Chinese Christian business man had been doing some good work among the poor on his own—The need had got beyond him and he asked for our help. He had made a careful list of 40 names of the poorest people from 50 to 80 years old and we were glad to give these a dollar each to buy a little grain with—They are poor over there."

Brown Sugar

"All well that ends well" is one of the last lines of the play "Brown Sugar," the first comedy that the Edgar Warwick Company presented to a Shanghai audience. A full house wended its way out into the snow and sleet somewhere about midnight, after watching, and listening, to the three scenes that compose the piece "Brown Sugar," and the general opinion was most favorable.

But it was a matter of "All's well that ends, well." The first act struck me as being very weak. I was not sure if it was due to the actors, or the piece. Then came the second act and again the piece left an unsatisfactory impression. Was it the play or the actors? Perhaps both. But act three made up for all the troubles of the preceding two acts. All the players showed up to the advantage. All the players showed, that given the right stuff they will be all right. To put the whole show in a nut shell we can again quote one of the final lines "All ends that ends well."

"Brown Sugar" has nothing in it as far as the plot goes that can be called original. The dialogue in parts is splendid. The frequent opportunities to bring in real, genuine, swear words are taken full advantage of, and the audience also show their appreciation by generous applause and laughter. The chorus girl, who marries into the peerage, wins all along and she is so sweet that she thoroughly deserves her success. That is the play and "All's well that ends well."

Now for the players. Edgar Warwick has gathered together a strong cast for any play. Perhaps his management was not wise in its casting last night. Mr. Tom Fenwick as "Lord Sloane" was certainly out of place. He never for a moment gained the unanimous sympathy of the audience. Miss Muriel Aked as the "Countess of Knightsbridge" dressed her part in poor style but managed to carry her lines well. Those are the only complaints anyone could possibly give to the players. On last night's playing I should give the laurels to Mr. Dudley Howarth as "Archibald Wentworth" in which part he was splendid from A to Z, and to Mr. Thorpe-Mayne as "Mr. Edmondson" who, as the theatrical manager, was absolutely lifelike. He knows a good deal about the bright side of the footlights.

Miss Marjory Clark comes here with a big reputation. She played the part of "Lady Sloane" and from her first appearance, to the final call that she got at the last fall of the curtain, she showed that advance notices were not misplaced. She is an artiste to her fingertips. We can all look forward to her future appearances with pleasurable anticipation. Fine work Miss Clark and we like you.

Another lady who calls for special notice is Miss Beatrix Wynn. I imagine that in character parts she will shine as brilliantly as stars of the first constellation. Her portrayal of "Lady Honoria Nesbitt" was altogether excellent.

We were all pleased to see Mr. Edgar Warwick again in the lime light and his "Crobie Carruthers" was convincing.

Tonight the same play will be repeated, and another big house will probably be just as pleased as the audience was last night, for "All's well that ends well."

RICE IS LOWER

As a result of the stringent measures taken by the local organisations and the refusal of the native banks to allow mortgages on rice, the price of the cereal has gone down to $8.60. However, reports are still current that certain smugglers in Nantao have purchased over 10,000 piculs of rice for hoarding.

HEARTS OF OAK

Oak has long been known as a wood of sterling qualities. The stoutest vessels which ever put to sea were made from English Oak; some of them are still to be seen lying at moorings, where they have lain for a century or more, unwanted, as out of date and dilapidated. The timber in them, however, is as good as the day when it was hewn from its forest home.

It is, then, a wood which will stand all the wear and rough knocks which either you, your children or your grand-children will be able to give to it, and then be a pleasure to look upon.

WE SUPPLY OAK FOR FLOORING, WAINSCOTING, PANELLING, ECT., ECT., KILN-DRIED AND QUALITY GUARANTEED.

We give all orders personal attention. After you have placed your order with us, the flooring will be laid and all work carried out under the personal supervision of a foreign expert of the Company. This supervision costs you nothing, and we prefer to do this for you.

Insist that all lumber for flooring and panelling for interior work bears the "Three Pines" Trade Mark, and the letters "KL" signifying kiln dried, thus ensuring its perfect quality, and suitability for the severe climatic conditions in China.

MRS. KOO LAUDED AS GREAT AID TO CHINA'S MINISTER

'Western To Her Finger Tips,' Is Comment Of Writer In Daily Express

MUCH SEEN IN SOCIETY

Interested In Politics And Frequently Attends Commons' Debates

(Reuter's Service)

London, February 1.—The Daily Express publishes an article eulogising the charms of Mrs. Wellington Koo, wife of the Chinese Minister, whom it describes as "Western to her fingertips." It says she is always dressed in the latest Paris creations and no society function is complete without her and her sister, the Countess Kan. Both sisters drive their own grey-painted two-seaters through the London traffic.

Mrs. Koo is a great art collector and theatergoer, while her keen interest in the world of politics is evidenced by her frequent appearance in the Ladies' Gallery of the House of Commons. She should be of great assistance to her husband, adds the Express.

Students In India Continue Restless

M. Clemenceau Thinks Situation There Is Due To World Conditions

(Reuter's Service)

Bombay, February 1.—The non-co-operation propaganda is growing in intensity. At Bombay, 750 students are leaving college. Two schools are in the non-co-operative movement. One of these advises the students to engage in propaganda in the villages, and the other seeks to start a national college immediately.

Bombay, Jan. 31.—Uneasiness still continues in regard to the situation in the mill area. The employes in the weaving department of the Century Mill have struck for higher wages, but the millhands at the Kohinor Mill have resumed work.

Paris, February 1.—According to a Bombay telegram, M. Clemenceau gave an interviewer his opinion on the recent disorders in India.

What was happening in India, said the ex-Premier, was only what was occurring in every other country the world over, no more and no less.

"Two thousand years ago it was said 'Love one another,' but today men are massacring one another," went on M. Clemenceau. "In my youth, I was a fighter, but today I only believe in this maxim, 'Love one another.'"

The last sentence is calculated to cause some surprise alike to friends and adversaries of the "Tiger."

BRITISH TRAINING FOR YOUNG CHINA IS SZE'S ADVICE

Britain's Contiguous Territory Makes Intelligent Co-operation Necessary

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 2.—The retiring Chinese Minister, Mr. Coa-Ke Alfred Sze, has written to the press, expressing his gratitude for the kindness and courtesy shown him in England.

He lays emphasis on the friendliness existing between Great Britain and China, and anticipates that it will increase, but says that so long as Great Britain is an Asiatic power, with territory conterminous with China for a thousand miles, British and Chinese interests alike demand not only friendliness but cooperation. The industrial development of China, he continues, is a field for British Chinese co-operation.

Not only China and Great Britain, but the whole world would benefit from the application of British capital and skill to the development of China's resources.

But, he adds, if Anglo-Chinese co-operation is to become fruitful it is essential that some proportion of the younger generation of Chinese should be brought under the direct influence of British ideas and methods by means of education. The British must attract to Great Britain some of the makers and workers of the China of tomorrow.

Armed Robbers In Wayside Raid Get Lot Valued $1,000

Four robbers, two of whom were armed, entered a residence at 175 Singkiepang Road and escaped with loot valued at $1,000. At a late hour last night the police had not apprehended the offenders.

The quartette entered the house and two of the men pointed pistols at the inmates while the others searched for loot. They found $640 in money and jewelry worth $360.

Before an alarm could be given the men had fled.

American Woman's Club Notes

The Social Service Department of the American Woman's Club will meet this morning at the Carlton Cafe at 10:30 o'clock. Mrs. James MacDonell is the chairman of the Department. There will be no general meeting of the Woman's Club this morning.

MOTHERS' DEPARTMENT

The social problems girls and boys of high school age in Shanghai were forcefully presented in a paper by Mrs. A. P. Parker at a meeting of the Mother's Department of the American Woman's Club held yesterday morning at the Carlton Cafe.

Mrs. Parker said in part: "It would surprise the average American across the sea to be told that Shanghai is a safer place for adolescent youth than most cities in the home land. But it is so. In America the old fashioned home with its open door hospitality is passing. The cheap service here makes it possible to retain the home life here. The motion pictures shown here are for the most part clean and the motion picture can not be said to present the serious social problem in Shanghai it does in many American cities.

"We see little of the highly objectionable new forms of dancing so common at home among the high school girls and boys. Dress is saner, young girls and boys do not gad about the streets; girls of tender age are not receiving beaux and chaperones are the rule when young people congregate.

LITTLE SOCIAL LIFE

"There is almost too little social life for high school children excepting as the school provides. The principal and teachers of the American School have attacked the boy problem with a will. Mr. Bartlett is working to bring outside contact into the athletics of the school. His efforts need to be supplemented. Can we as mothers do anything to help? Can we not open our homes more often to the young people including in our invitations others than those in the school circle?

"Criticisms of children from the Orient who go home to school is that they lack self reliance, that they do not know how to wait on themselves, that they are snobbish and extravagant. Have these criticisms foundation? If so what can we mothers do to correct and prevent these characteristics? To find chores for a foreign child in China is difficult."

A discussion followed Mrs. Parker's paper The review by Mrs. H. E. Davis of Hall's book, "Youth, It's Education, Regimen and Hygiene" proved very worth while and Mrs. Davis gave a clear summary of the subject.

"Began to think she would never get well."

Our Portrait is of Miss FLORRIE ORGAN, of 100, Clark Street, Ladywood, Birmingham, England, whose father writes:

"My daughter Florrie was suffering with a very bad heel covered with Sores and Ulcerous, and in fact her mother was afraid to comb her hair. She had been under several doctors, but all to no purpose, so I began to think she would never get well again and lose all her hair. As your 'Clarke's Blood Mixture' cured me of Glandular Swellings in the Neck some years ago, and so averted my having to undergo an operation, I decided to give 'Clarke's Blood Mixture' a fair trial in the case of my daughter, and I am pleased to say it effected a wonderful cure in just over a fortnight."

SUFFERERS from Bad Legs, Abscesses, Ulcers, Glandular Swellings, Piles, Eczema, Boils, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Eruptions, Rheumatism, Gout should realise that lotions and ointments can but give temporary relief: to be sure of complete and lasting benefit the blood must be thoroughly cleansed of the impure waste matter, the root cause of such troubles. Clarke's Blood Mixture quickly attacks, overcomes and expels the impurities: that is why so many remarkable recoveries stand to its credit. Pleasant to take, and free from injurious ingredients.

Test Reveals Injustice Of Rumors Widely Circulated Recently

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 1.—With reference to the nervousness aroused by the use of a small percentage of Chinese flour in the manufacture of bread, the result of the analytical examination of two samples, taken at random by the Wheat Commission, is distinctly reassuring.

It shows that 76 percent of the constituents consists of mucilage, sugar and digestible carbohydrates, 9 percent of albuminous compounds, and 13 percent of moisture, with a small fractional percentage of fibre and mineral matter. Both samples are certified free of chestnuts, peanuts or soya beans.

HARA AGAINST BIG FORCE IN SIBERIA

Secured Support Of Viscount Kato For Sending Of Small Army In July, 1918

When Viscount Kato made reference in his address on Monday, January 24, in the Japanese House of Peers to the incident of 1918, at which time Premier Hara, as a member of the Advisory Council of Foreign Affairs, entertained an idea of opposing the proposition to send a large army to Siberia, he stated that he had pledged his support to Mr. Hara in opposing a large mobilisation. He added that the circumstances of his promise would be remembered by some of the cabinet members, mentioning no names. It became known later that it was Count Uchida and Mr. Tokonami who were sent as envoys by Mr. Hara to Viscount Kato's residence in Kojimachi to ask his views and to request his support.

When the American proposal came to Japan for a joint mobilisation, the Terauchi Ministry had an idea of mobilising a large army—called an independent mobilisation. Mr. Hara, then chief of the Seiyukai and a member of the Advisory Council on Foreign Affairs, was in favor of mobilising 7,500 soldiers as suggested by America. On July 14, 1918, he sent Count Uchida and Mr. Tokonami to interview Viscount Kato, who was decidedly opposed to the mobilisation of a larger force. Viscount Kato, chief of the Kenseikai, concurred in the views of Mr. Hara and pledged his support. Mr. Hara later expressed his thanks to Viscount Kato for the pledge given.

But it became clear afterward that, since the Terauchi Ministry was determined to mobilise a large army in Siberia, Mr. Hara was afraid that if the Seiyukai had opposed the Government plan the Terauchi Ministry might ally with the Kenseikai party against the Seiyukai. So he wanted to sound the views of the Kenseikai chief to be assured of the political security for the Seiyukai.

When, however, the mobilisation commenced, the strength increased from one to two more divisions. Viscount Kato recalled the incident to the memory of the two present cabinet ministers as well as Mr. Hara and wanted to know if the present ministry had the heart to insist upon keeping a large force stationed in Siberia.

CURED OF MALARIA BY Dr. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS 8 YEARS AGO AND STILL WELL.

Striking Testimony From Burma

Mr. D. T. Paul was station master at Tharrawaddy, on the Burma Government Railway, in 1912 when he gave the following testimony. Seen again recently at Gyobingauk Railway Station, Burma, where he is now station master, he reported himself as still in excellent health. What better evidence could be wished as to the permanence of the cures wrought by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills!

"The malarial attacks used to start with a feeling of lassitude and pains in my back and lower limbs," said Mr. Paul. "Meals became repugnant. Prolonged fits of shivering followed and left my body cold all over. Then my temperature would rise until perspiration simply poured out of me. These continual attacks made me very thin and weak. None of the so-called remedies I tried did me any good.

"A friend told me that the only sure cure was Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, so I gave them a trial. After a week's treatment I felt that these Pills were invigorating me. It was wonderful how soon my appetite returned and refreshing sleep came to me at night. When getting up in the morning I felt bright and contented. A three weeks' course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills made another and stronger man of me."

As a remedy for diseases arising from vitiated, watery blood or disordered nerves Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, the famous Blood Builder and Nerve Tonic, have a world-wide reputation. They are obtainable from medicine vendors everywhere, also post free 1 bottle for $1.50 6 bottles $8.00 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

Graphite Deposit Found In Shantung

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, January 31.—A deposit of graphite suitable for lead pencils has been discovered in the northwestern part of Laiyang Hsien, Shantung, at a village called Yuehshih. The owners are proposing to open the mine under the Chinese Bureau of Mines regulations for the exploitation of a second class mine.

As these regulations state that a second class mine can be operated only with the consent of the people of the immediate district, a number of the progressive younger gentry of Laiyang county have formed an association pledged to either compel the operaters to devote two percent of the proceeds of the mine to education within the county or to obstruct the operation.

STANFORD WILL SEND BASEBALL TEAM TO EAST

Definite Decision Reached, Is News From Palo Alto; China Not Included

WILL START THINGS HERE

Baseball Club Meeting Set For February 18 When Plans For Summer Will Be Made

(U. S. Naval Radio through Reuter)

Palo Alto, California, Feb. 1.—It is announced that the Leland Stanford Universiaty will send a baseball team to the Far East next summer, playing matches in Japan, Manchuria and the Philippines.

The wireless message is the first definite information received here that Leland Stanford is going to send a baseball team. The message, it may be noted, names Japan, Manchuria and the Philippines and omits Shanghai or China.

It is expected that arrangements will be made so that the team will come here and possibly play in the North and as is known, Dr. N. L. Downs, president of the Baseball Club to work on the details of the trip with the Graduate Manager of Stanford. In all probability the Philippines trip will be omitted because the rainy season will be on when the American collegians get out in this part of the world.

BASEBALL CLUB MEETING

The Baseball Club will hold its annual meeting and election of officers on Friday afternoon, February 18, probably at the Carlton, when details of the season will be discussed. Reports on last season will be made, showing that Club made some $200 although 30 new uniforms were purchased and G.$200 appropriated for new equipment purchased by H. T. Bradley in the United States. This is expected to arrive here soon.

Bradley will probably not return to Shanghai and his place on the Baseball Club committee must be filled. Dr. N. L. Downs is returning and Ray Bunn and F. P. Bills will be here for the Summer. Johnny Potter insists that he must resign his berth as secretary-treasurer. The election of his successor is one important item for the meeting. Potter took the job when Bradley left and says that it is impossible for him to continue because of other business.

MIGHT NAME MANAGER

The work of the secretary-treasurer could be lightened by the election of a team manager, who would look after the grounds, equipment and scheduled. This would give the secretary more time for the actual clerical work connected with running the club.

It is clear that an early start must be made on a membership campaign this year as the Club will have a heavy year. And exchange is not with us as it was.

The Olympic Games to be held here in May will give the baseball season an impetus. And will make the holding of an open baseball series easier in August. It is expected that teams will be invited from Tientsin, Manila and Japan to play Leland Stanford and Shanghai here.

Sport Editor's Letter Box

Sporting, Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir.—Referring to your leader of yesterday in which you mentioned the fact that you hoped the China Contest Committee of the Far Eastern Games would include in its program a set of Open Contests or Invitation Events, I have the pleasure to inform you that the Comitiee has had this matter under consideration for some time and have now definitely decided to include such events in the program.

It remains now to get together a good working sub-committee who will help organise and push this part of the Games Program and I would welcome your able assistance in so doing.

We appreciate the interest your paper shows in the coming games and will do our best to co-operate with you in every way. Yours faithfully,

J. H. GRAY.

NEW YORK PLANS INTERNATIONAL AMATEUR BOUTS

Englishmen To Box American Firemen, Police, Soldiers And Sailors

An international boxing carnival between the leading amateur middleweights and heavyweights of England and the United States, to be held in New York this month, will be the initial international contest in a sport series which promises to make 1921 notable.

Plans for the bouts, which will be held at a place and date to be announced later by the International Sporting Club, were completed by the club match maker, Tex O'Rourke, after a series of conferences in London.

Unless there is an eleventh hour change in the plans, the bouts will bring together the best amateur middleweight and heavyweight boxers of the English and United States armies and navies. The leading champions in these two weight classes of the London Police and Fire departments will also face opponents from the New York departments.

UNDER FEDERATION RULES

All bouts will be under the regulations of the International Boxing Federation and will have the sanction of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States, which controls amateur boxing in this country.

The plan for the international bouts was conceived some months ago by W. A. Gavin, of the International S. C., but owing to the amateurism involved it was necessary to procure the co-operation of both the American and English athletic unions, which exercise jurisdiction over amateur boxers in their respective countries.

Considerable correspondence crossed the ocean before it was decided that conditions warranted the sending of Matchmaker O'Rourke to England to complete the arrangements. Cablegrams received by both the A. A. U. and the International S. C. officials indicate that final details have been completed.

ASK AMATEURS CREDENTIALS

The invading amateur boxers are expected to arrive in time to give them at least two weeks training before the contests. In view of their early departure the secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union forwarded the following cablegram to the secretary of the English union:

"A. A. U., governing amateur boxing in the United States, sanctions boxing planned by International Sporting Club of New York. Send immediately amateur credentials of your army, navy, police and firemen. Contests to be under International Boxing Federation rules and A. A. U. supervision."

At the offices of the Amateur Athletic Union it was stated that the A. A. U. would select the American ring representatives, but the method of selection from the ranks of soldiers, sailors, police and firemen was not announced.

The Twenty Best Knuckle Traders

Were All Not In Ring—Many Good Men Fought And Blushed Unseen In Modest Riots

BY "BUGS" BAER

Demon Runyon and Tad are getting all blazed up about the twenty best heavyweights in the world. Tad is aglow about it. New York is also getting heated up. Up at the Fritz-Karlton hotel, there is a bell that starts the bellhops off in their six-tip races. Every time the gong pops, all the guests in the lobby jump up and start shadow boxing.

The twenty best scrappers weren't all in the ring. If they will turn back the Eighteenth Amendment and give us yesterday, we'll pick out twenty that could have licked their weight in stuffed wildcats. One of 'em was Gimpty Winters. Gimp used to hang around the Bowery, shadow boxing with his appetite. Every time he poured himself a snifter, the spigot motorman handed him a towel to dry his ears. When he had his grease cups all oiled up, he would start in on a municipal Clean Up Week and put the tap on all the uncrowned heads of America.

WAITED FOR THE COPS

The fight never started until the sixth wagon load of cops got there. He socked a bird once and the rascal is still bouncing. He won more fights with less excuse than any battler in the U. S. He could get insulted by the whistle on a peanut stand and would toss the proprietor for a row of toll gates. Every fight he had went to a decision by a jury. He got so tough that they had to shoot his soup to him out of a gat. He finally died from hardening of the knuckles, having fought 8,900 times and gained 17,800 coroner's verdicts. He beat everybody twice.

Battling Bundy was another rough Xmas shopper. Bat laid the fist on his constituency generously. He thought that a beating was a vacation. If one man wouldn't put the boots on another man, Bat considered that guy a miser. In barroom skirmishing there are no rules. The fight ain't over until the black crepe is on the door bell. Bundy was a zigaboo and the champ of his race.

BLACK EYE A BOUQUET

He could have flattened Jack Johnson, Sam Langford and Joe Jeanette all in the same barroom. He thought that a black eye was a bouquet and that blood was cologne. But he had the advantage of most fighters in that he had no troubles to think about. He never had to stop to count his money. He ruined his hands socking a professional glass eater in the vest, but before that he had phlammed some bird so rough that they counted the poor lad out in the air.

They were tough in those days before women got the vote. They trained on whatever the barkeep had in the bottle. Even their breaths were hostile. They used to hold a cobblestone in their hands for a charm. A spank with a bungstarter was considered a light shampo.

Neither one of these fighters ever fought in a ring because they had the old alma mater spirit and didn't want to see their pure college sport commercialised. Beside, there was a strong superstition in their families about ropes.

Bat got ruined over in a Philadelphia election. Somebody dropped an anvil on him and busted the arch in his skull Another repeater pushed a chimney over on him and a locomotive ran up his back like a chill. He died of a broken heart.

INDIANA PLAYS HARVARD THIS FALL AT BOSTON

Hoosiers Will Go To Stadium—Game Likely To Be Played Early In October

Harvard University's football eleven will play the University of Indiana, one of the Middle West's leading football teams, in the Harvard Stadium next season. This announcement at the Harvard Athletic Association offices confirmed reports from Chicago stating that Harvard had requested a game with the Middle Westerners. Coach Stiehm of the Indianans is reported to have declared at the meeting of Western Conference officials in Chicago, where they are arranging 1921 schedules of the "Big Ten," that the proffered contest with the Crimson almost surely would be accepted.

That Harvard coaches have been willing and anxious to meet a representative Western team for the past two years has been no secret. However, Illinois and Ohio State, the other colleges approached, have insisted that the Crimson play return games on a home and home basis. Harvard's faculty has been unwilling to accept that provision. Indiana, apparently is willing to play in the Stadium with no promise of a return game in the West. The date of the Indiana game probably will be in the early season, probably Oct. 8.

PORTER PLAYS PRINCE TONIGHT IN SEMI-FINAL

Champion Meets Man Who Easily Defeated Gordon Morriss And Fasting

AT AMERICAN CLUB

George Gray Makes Bow To Local Public Tomorrow At M. E. I. Hall

C. W. Porter, billiard champion of Shanghai, will meet his first real opposition tonight at the when he plays J. W. Prince at the American Club in the first of the semi-final matches in the championship tournament. Porter should win after a fight although Prince has gone through the tourney with an excellent record. He upset the dope in his first match by handily defeating Gordon Morriss and then won from E. F. Fasting by a score of 750 to 678.

Porter has beaten J. M. C. Lopes and in the second round had no difficulty in disposing of J. P. Campos by a score of 750 to 591.

Tonight's game is to start at 9:15 o'clock.

The other semi-final, between E. D. Bush and R. P. Phillips has not yet been arranged, Secretary Harry E. Gibson of the Billiard Association announced yesterday. According to the rules of the tournament it must be played by Saturday.

GRAY PLAYS TOMORROW

George Gray will be seen for the first time here tomorrow night when he will play a 600-point game at the Marine Engineers Institute. His probable opponent will be J. E. Grant. During and after the match, the Australian marvel will demonstrate shots and give a lecture on billiards.

Next week Gray is to play at the Lusitano Club and will be seen in action at other clubs. No public matches have been arranged as yet and there is difficulty in getting a suitable hall for the champion to play so that a big crowd would be able to watch.

Gray will probably stay here a couple of weeks before going to Tientsin, Peking and Hankow. He is on a tour of the world.

Tour For Penn State Wrestlers

Pennsylvania State wrestlers probably will meet two Middle Western opponents this Winter. A match with Iowa State University already has been scheduled to take place at Ames, Iowa, March 26, and arrangements are being made for a meet with Indiana University during the same week. It is the first time in seven years that Penn State grapplers have scheduled any but Eastern opponents.

CASTORIA
for Infants and Children.
Save the Babies.
INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent, or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent, or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!
We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy and retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse. It causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.
The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria

UNDERGROWTH

In their new and very beautifully written novel, "Undergrowth," Francis Brett Young and his collaborator, E. Brett Young, have done a very daring and a very venturesome thing—they have challenged comparison with Algernon Blackwood in the field which he has made peculiarly his own. And what is more, they have, to a great extent, "gotten away with it," if one may be pardoned for dropping into the vernacular. Not that the authors of "Undergrowth" can as yet claim to rank with that extraordinary writer, whose gift for expressing the well-nigh inexpressible, theirs does not, at present, equal. Their work possesses in no small degree a weird and shuddering quality; the vague feeling of the presence of ancient, intangible forces is well brought out; but one need only compare this new novel with "The Wave" or "The Man Whom The Trees Loved" to see who is the master in this especial branch of the literary art. All of which does not render "Undergrowth" one whit the less an unusual and worth-while book. It is both, and to a notable degree. A novel without a love story, without a single important female character, it is a refreshing change from the customary tale of man and maid. Very well written, it is equally well developed.

The story which it tells is the story of a conflict between modern men and the ancient pagan forces, the "old gods" who from prehistoric times have dominated the lonely Welsh valley in which the action is laid—lonely, although it is but a few miles from a railroad. This conflict manifests itself at once physically and spiritually. Physically, in the endless series of accidents which befall those engaged in building the great dam that is to restrain the waters of the Dulas, accidents in number out of all proportion to the usual expected percentage, and that despite every precaution; spiritually, in their effect upon the characters and souls of Forsyth, the young engineer with whose coming to take charge of the work on the dam the book begins, and his predecessor Carlyon, the dead man whose diary and whose influence form important parts of the narrative.

That narrative is not a thing to be epitomized, neither is it one to be described. From Forsyth's first sensations of loneliness and of a surrounding, implacable hostility; his first uneasy dream "that the trees of the woods which climbed the mountains above, and the tangled thickets that tumbled to the river, were robbing him of breath," until at the last, a broken man, he climbs Pen Havaddan, the great mountain dominating the valley, and sees "the vast lake . . . emptying itself in foaming masses above the broken dam," the development is at once steady and subtle. One can scarcely put one's finger on a particular point, a particular scene or incident, and say that it is just here that the ancient pagan forces, whose principal manifestations are about the mountain and in the "Dial Careg"—the Stone of Vengeance—begin to obtain complete mastery over the ambitious, energetic, practical Scottish engineer. So well is their slow encroachment presented that it is entirely convincing. The strange valley, where no Christian church had ever flourished; the great stone, worshipped in the ages long since passed away; the mighty mountain, Pen Savaddan, where the Cockney Hayward found that which his friend had flung away—these gradually acquire a power over the reader's imagination, as they did over those of Carlyon, the clear-sighted, who knew what it was he fought and made definite choice, and Forsyth, too practical to possess the same clarity of spiritual insight. Upon the men brought to work on the dam the effect is again different—a restlessness, leading to the outbreak, which, in its turn, leads to the profaning of the Dial Careg. The book is interesting, dramatic at times, and full of a strange, compelling beauty—beauty not only of description of the daily glories of earth and sky but of that mystic loveliness of nature, one of whose aspects is a strange and inexplicable something of awe, not unmixed with fear. It is needless to say that the book is worth reading, especially, since Brett Young is one of the younger among the English novelists, by those who are interested in the literary developments of the present time.

THE PRODIGAL VILLAGE

The Prodigal Village. By Irving Bacheller. Indianapolis: Bobbs-Merrill Company.

Contrasted with the turgid, psychological novels that jostle one another for place on the main thoroughfare of contemporary fiction, Irving Bacheller's latest book, "The Prodigal Village," is a placid woodland lane. Reading it is like stepping around a corner away from the hectic turbulence of a metropolis and finding one's self in a New England village—like exchanging the conversation of an accustomed cosmopolitan companion for that of an ingenuous, hearty rustic of a generation ago.

As its title implies, the book is an adaptation of the story of the Prodigal Son with an entire rural American community in the place of a single hero. In retelling this old story Mr. Bacheller has dared to be unsophisticated, to write from the same viewpoint as the narrator of the original tale. Unapologetically he proclaims his faith in the sturdy old ideals—orthodox religion, love of mankind and the noble duty of work. "George Meredith," says one of the characters whom he obviously intends to enlist the reader's sympathy, "once wrote to his son that he would need the help of religion to get safely beyond the stormy passions of youth. It is very true!"

How arresting such a sentence would be in a novel by any of the acknowledged younger leaders in fiction! "The heart of the world loves above all things the touch of a kindly hand," writes Mr. Bacheller on another page, and a little further on he says, "The remedy for all our trouble and bitterness is real democracy, which is nothing more or less than the love of men—the love of justice and fair play for each and all."

These ideals the author shows at sword's point with the new, corroding materialism that touched every town in the United States with the prosperity of 1917-1918. Never was America so poor spiritually as when her purse bulged with gold. Of all the people in Bingville, the scene of Mr. Bacheller's story, only four persons realised how poverty-stricken their fellow-townsmen were, despite their fat bank balances. These four were crippled "Bob" Moran, a spirit untouched by any evil thought, unbroken to lures and thorny ways, known to all the town as the Shepherd of the Birds; Hiram Blenkinsop, the drunkard of Bingville, who had lost his Old Self; the widow Moran, Bob's mother, and Judge Crooker, the patriarchal personification of Justice and Mercy. By their example and with the help of the true spirit of Christmas this quartet succeeds in opening the eyes of the town to the folly of its headlong pursuit of pleasure and gold.

Jeremiad is a word none to strong to describe the ferocity of the verbal attacks. Mr. Bacheller repeatedly launches through the mouth of Judge Crooker against what he evidently conceives to be the arch sappers of American morale—the movies, jazz dancing and present-day styles in clothes:

> It is my deliberate opinion that the dances and costumes and moving pictures we have seen in Bingville are doing more injury to civilisation than all the guns of Germany. . . . The tender souls of the young receive the impression (from the movies) that life in the great world is mostly drunkenness, violence, lust and Great White Waywardness of one kind or another. . . . The jazz band is to me a sign of spiritual decay. It is a step toward the jungle. I hear in it the beating of the tom-tom. It is not music. It is the barbaric yawp of sheer recklessness and daredevilism and it is everywhere.

This same recklessness pervades our economic as well as our social life, according to the author, who inveighs against the trend of industrial affairs, mercilessly flaying workmen for continually demanding more pay for less work.

The total effect upon the reader of these polemics in "The Prodigal Village" is the impression that he is listening to a Voice from the Past, but a voice to which it might perhaps be wise to give respectful heed today.

JIMMY'S JOB

Jimmy Quigg, Office Boy. By Harld S. Latham. The Macmillan Company.

Harold S. Latham's new story for boys runs parallel to events of the day. In "Under Orders" and in "Marty Lends a Hand" he gave to young readers stories of wartime America. Now we have "Jimmy Quigg, Office Boy," a tale centering around a book publishing house, with a backbone of plot derived from the present day operations of the "reds."

It was a happy moment for Jimmy Quigg when he had to go job hunting in order to support his mother, and like most boys who start out for work he made up his mind to take anything that meant a regular envelope on pay day. The unwashed, rain-dirted windows of the Berrington Publishing Company attracted his attention and led him to enter. But when he told the kindly Mr. Owens how he'd like to keep his windows washed and books dusted off that gentleman just said, "You'll do," and that ended it. Jimmy got the job, but as an office boy and not as porter.

Well, anyway, red ink slipped into the liquid soap container in the washroom was mighty funny until the president washed his hands with what seemed like liquid soap. The Office Boys' League was a great organisation until the members began to strike for more wages; then it came to a full stop! But all these incidents are secondary to the time when Fred, another office boy at the company, is reported missing, along with $5,000 of the firm's money. Immediately a hunt is started by Jimmy Quigg, who believed from the start that Fred was innocent. It goes on and on, and it would certainly spoil the story to tell more.

Mr. Latham has been associated with boys for a number of years and was one himself. He is familiar with their traits, habits, ambitions, fun and, above all, their hankering for adventure. The book proves it.

FROM ASHALUNA

The Man From Ashaluna. By Henry Payson Dowst. Boston: Small, Maynard and Co.

Business, love and adventure, the whole salted pleasingly with wholesome humor, make up the contents of a cleverly conceived, well told novel. Judson Dunlap, a big, two-fisted farmer and woodsman, who was a Sergeant overseas, and who gained a Croix de Guerre, among other distinctions, is the possessor of a large tract of land which is not of much value for farming operations but holds possibilities for water-power reckoned in the millions of dollars by certain powerful financiers of New York City. The way in which the magnates try to get possession of this property first at a low price and afterward at very high ones, always to be shut off by the shrewd young Jud Dunlap, is carried along through the story in a way that never permits the interest to flag.

Jud has invented a patent churn—moved thereto in the first place to save labor for his mother, but afterward improving it so that it becomes worth a fortune. Jud exploits his churn and it leads to his ultimate happiness, as well as wealth, because with it he wins a wealthy and highly cultivated young woman whom he has met and saved from death by freezing in a blizzard in the neighborhood of his home, and who permits him to see her in New York. At first she does this in a spirit of gratitude, but her sentiments change as time goes on. This evolution is skillfully brought out by the author, and at last it does not seem so incongruous that he and Mary Beverly should be in each other's arms, because Jud gradually acquires a worldly polish which fits well over his native shrewdness, although it does not seem likely at the beginning.

There are other good characters in the novel, including a powerful Wall Street magnate who is a little different from the usual type in stories, and all the more interesting on that account. While there is nothing particularly striking in this book in any one place, it is a well made piece of fiction, a really good novel.

MODEL ENGLISH READER

Model English Reader, Book III, is the third book in a series written by Mr. Tsen Yih-zan and published by the Commercial Press to be used as a text book in teaching English.

It consists of 32 lessons of four sections each. The index is complete and detailed and states clearly the material to be covered. The first ten lessons contain reading, conversation and grammar, and thus lay a good foundation. The introduction of sight reading, interpretation, composition and letter writing also adds variety as well as other elements that are necessary to the mastery of English.

The appendixes are valuable as they give rules for punctuation, material for dialogues, lists of valuable but he has also included irregular verbs, and a pronouncing and explanatory glossary, using phonetic symbols.

Not only has Mr. Tsen outlined a course of study which is very in his subject matter much important information and many interesting facts about English life which are necessary to a thorough understanding and comprehensive use of the English language.

Miltonise your Food

Meat, Poultry, Fish, Vegetables—these can all be Miltonised. Milton not only preserves fresh food in all weathers, but also removes danger of impurities which may be there before purchasing or through the neglect of your servants. Food which is Miltonised will not go bad, even when exposed to risk of contamination by flies and other insects. If flies do settle on it, which is unusual, they cannot harm it.

How to use Milton.—Just wash or spray Meat, Poultry, Fish, etc., immediately after buying, with water to which Milton has been added in proportion of a tablespoonful to a pint. Soak vegetables before cooking in a similar solution. Milton does not add the slightest taste or smell—only freshens up the natural flavour of the food and makes it pure and wholesome.

What Happened to the Meat?

At a Canadian Military Camp a joint of fresh meat was treated with Milton, and then hung in the open near the horses' quarters. The weather was warm (it was June) and for three whole days the meat hung there exposed to the sun and to swarms of flies and other insects. It was then taken down, washed and examined by the medical staff, who reported it perfectly pure and wholesome. The meat was eaten that day for dinner, and the verdict was "delicious." This experiment was undertaken to prove the efficiency of Milton.

A copy of the "Breeches" Bible, translated in 1560, printed in 1579, so called from use of the word in the verse quoted but more correctly known as the Geneva Bible, is owned by William F. Fratcher of Detroit. Modern versions read, "made themselves aprons."

A FAMILY HEIRLOOM

The book is well preserved probably due to good care. It has been rebound. The date of rebinding is not known, but it is thought to have been done by a member of the Fard family, in which the book was an heirloom for at least 150 years.

The Bible is full calf bound. The cover has withstood the effect of time remarkably well. Clasps and corner pieces on either side are missing. It is thought perhaps the book was stolen, the corner broken off and sold and, its value not known, the book itself thrown aside as junk.

This description is written on a piece of paper and pasted on the inside of the cover: "Baker's edition of the Bible, printed 1578, better known by the name of the Breeches Bible, from the translation of the 7th verse of the 3d chap of Genesis. Many of the wood cuts in this Bible are from the celebrated Nuremburgh Chronicle publ. in Fol. 1493 and are among the earliest decoration in wood wk. or laces after the invention of printing. They are said to be engraved by Wolgemuth, master of the celebrated Alb. Duer."

MARGIN TELLS A STORY

The work closes with a concordance. This is followed by "The Whole Book of Psalms, Collected Into English Meeter." It bears the imprint "R. W. 1658," which probably refers to the stationers. It was printed nearly a century after the Scriptures and evidently bound in the same volume by one of the early owners. The book is in Roman and Italic type.

Aside from the interest the book arouses as a curiosity, one can easily imagine a tender story following it down the years until the volume fell into alien hands. Through it, on fly leaves and margins, are written, here in script as handsome as copperplate and there the rough but legible scrawl of a hand unused to the pen, notations which might form the groundwork for the tale of a patriarch and his descendants through several generations.

VERSE IN BOOK

The first to inscribe his title to the book wrote: Robert Chadwick. His Book. Anno Domini. 1751." He follows his inscription with a verse:

Christ's arms do still stand open to receive
All weary prodigals that sin do leave;
For them He left His Father's blest abode.
Made Son of Man to make Men Sons of God;
To cure their wounds, He life's elixir bled
And dy'd a death to raise them from the dead."

In all probability Robert Chadwick presented the book to his daughter, Elizabeth, for on margins of two pages is written: "John Ford was blessed with one of the Lord's children, Elizabeth Chadwick, whom I hope when death parts we shall meet in a land of bliss where we may join the harmony song of music, and we join hands together for all eternity with joy and satisfaction. Nov. 26, 1760. Christ Church, Manchester."

THE LETTERS USED

On another page is boldly printed: "John Ford's Book, Anno Domini 1771." The use of I for J was common. In the Roman text the long "s" is used and "u" and "v" differ only in position. Following the title page come the church calendar order of morning and "euening" prayer, the "letanie," the "collectes," the communion, the "publique" baptism the "priuate" baptism, confirmation, "catechifume," the "fourme of solemnisation of Matrimonie," visitation of the sick, "burial" of the dead churching of women or thanksgiving after childbirth.

On the reverse of the flyleaf carrying Robert Chadwick's first memorandum is written: "John Ford, his book, 1812, presented to him by his father, William Ford (son of John Ford and grandson of Robert Chadwick), who died in October, 1798. William Ford married to Sarah Rowbotham, May 2d, 1795, at Presbytery, Cheshire. John Ford, son of Will and Sarah Ford, born April 18, 1798, and christened in Christ Church, Manchester."

Wedding

WALLACE-BOYD

A pretty wedding took place yesterday at the Holy Trinity Cathedral, when Mr. Dare Frederick Alexander Wallace, elder son of Captain F. H. Wallace and the late Mrs. Wallace of Shanghai, was married to Miss Hilda Doreen Boyd, younger daughter of the late W. H. Boyd and Mrs. George T. Finch of Shanghai.

The service, which was fully choral, was conducted by the Very Rev. Dean Symons, and Mr. R. B. Hurry presided at the organ.

The bride, who was given away by her step father, wore a beautiful gown of white satin crepe draped with white silk embroidered with silver—a spray of orange blossom falling from the waist; the court train was of white satin crepe line with georgette with a true lover's knot of orange blossom. Her silk net veil was held by a dainty Russian crown of renaissance lace and orange blossom. She carried a shower bouquet of white arum lilies and roses.

The beauty of the bride and her attire was augmented by that of her entourage which consisted of Master Jackie Potts as train bearer dressed in pale pink satin; the two bridesmaids, the Misses Rita and Germaine Lemiere, charming in dainty of pink crepe do chine trimmed with pink flowers wreathed in silver leaves their bouquets being of pink carnations, and the bride's mother was gowned in silver grey accordion pleated satin and wore a large black hat.

Mr. E. C. Robinson supported the bridegroom as bestman while the following gentlemen, Messrs. G. H. Benwell, George Buyers, L. Coutts Boyd, Norman Rutherford and J. Webster acted as ushers.

A reception was afterwards held at 24, Gordon Road where numerous presents were displayed indicating the popularity of the bride and bridegroom.

After the usual felicitous speeches, the happy couple left for their honeymoon which will be spent in Hangchow.

The Chinese Recorder

The Chinese Recorder, February 1921. Published monthly by the American Presbyterian Mission Press.

The leading article this month is a striking symposium on "The Christian Message to China." Twenty-one different writers offer brief statements of the message, as they think it should be presented, and the result shows a wide range of emphasis and interest. The editorial comment on the whole is likewise interesting. If there are any who thinks that "fundamentals" are in danger of neglect in China, they should read this symposium.

Two of the articles are continuations of subjects whose treatment began in a former number; namely, Dr. Sailer's discussion of the "Reconstruction of Secondary and Higher Education in India and the United States with its Suggestions for China," and Dr. Morley's study of the second of "The Five Pa." The standard already set is well maintained.

Miss Edith Conche provides a wise and witty treatment of some "Tropical Diseases" that are not usually presented in dictionaries of tropical medicine. The nature of the treatment may be guessed from the names of the diseases, which are Depression, Grumbling, Irritability, Argufying, Diddling, Dawdling, Heroics, and Carping Cavilling Criticism. The diagnoses are most accurate, and the treatment advised does not err from lack of knowledge of human nature. The young missionary is especially advised to read, mark, learn and inwardly digest. There is more truth than poetry in this article, and the writer's attempt to shield herself from the consequences of her probing by pointing out that tropical diseases do not affect people north of the Tropic of Cancer only heightens the general effect.

The commendable attempt to find out and exhibit how Christianity is really affecting studious and intelligent Chinese is continued in a translation, excellently done as before by Professor T. C. Chao, of Mr. L. C. Wu's "Problems of the Christian Church in China (A Statement of Religious Experience)." The original article appeared in the monthly publication of the Peking Apologetic Group, called "The Life." (Incidentally we deprecate the translation of the title of that publication without the use of the definite article; for if the American paper Life could see and read this paper, it would have a convulsion.) If that group of young men had done nothing else to justify their existence, the publication of this periodical would do so, and all who can would do well to read the original. But as it is doubtless inaccessible to many, the translation of important articles is something to be very thankful for. Mr. Wu's experience is of the "Back to Christ" type, and no one who has the future of the Christian Church at heart can afford to pass his criticisms by on the other side.

Among the briefer articles, we note a translation by Mr. Isaac Mason of a section from a Chinese life of Mohammed, which sets out the need for prohibition in no uncertain manner.

PEKING'S POWER OVER YANGTZSE VALLEY WANING

More Provinces Endangered As Militarists Gather More Influence Daily

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, January 31.—The situation in the Yangtsze valley appears to be growing steadily worse so far as the viewpoint of the Peking government is concerned. In spite of the repeated assurances that the Sun Yat-sen generals, Li Lieh-chun and Lan Tiem-wei, have been driven back in their attacks upon Hunan and Hupeh, the Hupeh provincial authorities are making frantic appeals for funds and reinforcements from Peking, stating plainly that their province and also that of Hunan is greatly endangered.

Szechuen, over which Peking was so confident a few weeks ago, again has slipped out of the government fold into the free atmosphere of autonomy, and it is clear that Hsiung Ko-wu, who has always found authority irksome, and only declared allegiance to Peking in order to double-cross Liu Tsung-hou, Peking's appointee, is going either to dominate Liu or drive him out.

TROUBLE IN KIANGSI

The most acute situation at the moment appears to be in Kiangsi, which province Sun Yat-sen is said to have earmarked for his own, to be held in reserve as a possible seat of government should another ruction occur at Canton. The Civil Governor of Kiangsi has been impeached by his Provincial Assembly, members of which are in Peking demanding that the government recognise the impeachment and withdraw him. Peking has no love for Chi Yang, and would recall him did it not fear to complicate matters still more.

On the military side, Chen Kwang-yuan, Tuchun of the province, is on the verge of armed clash with General Chang Chun-chang, who commands the defense troops of the province. Chang has practically bottled the Tuchun and his forces up in Nanchang, and has defied the government by levying taxes on his own responsibility for the support of his troops. The government is compelled to deal with him softly for fear that he will declare his independence or go over to the southern irreconcilables.

IN OTHER QUARTERS

While Peking's influence is waning in the Yangtsze valley, there is a movement on foot in the northwestern part of the eighteen provinces which bodes the loss of even its nominal authority there. The Tuchun of Kansu, upon the demand of the Mohammedan leaders under Ma Fu-hsiang, has been recalled, but there is evidence that the deposed Tuchun has now united with his Mohammedan enemies to keep the newly-appointed successor, Tsai, out of the post.

Tsai is afraid of the coalition, and refuses to attempt the job, while Ma who is in actual control, delays in going to his newly-appointed post in Suiyuan, and it is rumored that he is encouraged in his stand by General Chang Tso-lin, who has no desire to see the power of the Chihli faction increased by the entrance of Tsai, who is a Chihli man, on Kansu governorship.

KINGMAN & BROS.

How to Preserve the Teeth

In order to keep the teeth in a good condition scientific precaution must be taken. Through negligence, decay and numerous other affections such as tooth-ache, dental periostitis, esteo-periostitis, necrosis of the jaw, etc., may arise. During the process of ingestion there are settled on the teeth, some deposits of mineral and organic matters, called tartar, which possesses a morbid power of pressing the gum. As an inevitable result of the presence of this tartar, the teeth will become elongated and movable and will, by degrees, absorb away the enamel, leading ultimately to the decay and degeneration of the teeth. The tartar is so hard and resistant to the process of brushing that it cannot be scraped off except with dental instruments specially devised for that purpose.

Dr. KINGMAN offers to the public his service for preserving their teeth at an annual subscription Fee of $10.00 per head to be paid in advance.

The work to be done by Dr. KINGMAN to the subscribers consists in:—

(1) Cleaning of the teeth quarterly
(2) Filling with gold platinum alloy only, when the teeth present holes,
(3) Inspecting the teeth at any time at the desire of the subscribers

Chinese Ratepayers Publish Gazette

Second Number Contains The Proposed Amendments To Local Regulations

The proposed amendments to the Yangkiangpang Regulations are contained in the second number of the Chinese Ratepayers Gazette which made its appearance yesterday.

The amendments call for the election of Chinese councillors who have the same qualifications as the foreign members of the Municipal Council in the International Settlement.

The frontispiece of this number is a picture of the late Mr. Koo Yen-ching who took an active part in the refusal to pay taxes to the Municipal Council last year.

There is also a picture of the executive committee of the Shanghai Street Union, who was the moving spirit in the agitation for municipal representation.

FEWER TRAM STOPS

In order to offset the tendency towards the reduction of the average speed of the Shanghai tram cars in the Foreign Settlement due to the greatly increased traffic and longer waits at stopping places, some request stops on different routes are now being discontinued.

Mr. Donald McColl, general manager, urges that the passengers co-operate with the management for it is believed that in thus confining the stopping of the cars to Compulsory Stops, the service will be expedited and safety will be promoted.

I OFFER YOU THE BEST:
There are loyal hearts, there are spirits brave, there are souls that are pure and true; then give to the world the best you have, and the best will come back to you.
Give love, and love to your life will flow, a strength in your utmost need; have faith, and a score of hearts will show their faith in your word and deed.
Give truth, and your gift will be paid in kind, and honor will honor meet; and a smile that is sweet will surely find a smile that is just as sweet.
Give sorrow and pity to those who mourn, you will gather in flowers again, the scattered seeds of your thought outborne, though the sowing seemed but vain.
For life is the mirror of king and slave; 'tis just what we are and do; then give to the world the best you have, and the best will come back to you.

STOPPING PLACES.

In order to offset the tendency towards reduction of the average speed of the cars, due to the greatly increased traffic and longer waits at stopping places, some request stops on different routes are now being discontinued. This explanation is given for the information of passengers, and their kind co-operation is requested. It is believed that, in thus confining the stopping of the cars more to Compulsory Stops, not only will the service be expedited but safety will be promoted.

Tells Of World Cruise Of Russian Youngsters Being Sent To Homes

An interesting account of the round-the world cruise of the shipload of 780 Russian children who were taken from Vladivostok early last Autumn for return to their families in European Russia, and of their present comfortable state in Halila, Finland, from where they are being sent to their parents, is contained in a letter received by Mr. W. A. B. Nichols, of the American Red Cross, from Lieutenant-Colonel Riley H. Allen, Chief Executive of the Petrograd Children's Colony Expedition. The letter follows:

My dear Mr. Nichols:

Knowing the keen interest which you and your Chapter members took—not only in the work of the Siberian Commission in general—but especially in the welfare of the Petrograd Children's Colony, I think you will be glad for some further facts of the colony events.

After the wonderful and fascinating experience of our 780 children at San Francisco, the Panama Canal and New York, the steamer Yomei Maru, chartered by the Siberian Commission to carry the colony home, sailed from New York on September 11 and arrived at Brest, France, September 25.

GLIMPSE OF GERMANY

We stayed at Brest for three and one-half days discharging a part cargo of the Red Cross supplies for the European Commission taken from New York, and loaded on some further supplies for our Colony, and then proceeded into the Baltic Sea.

We passed through the Kiel Canal, and the children had a brief but interesting glimpse of that part of Germany, which lies along this waterway. The Kiel Canal has been opened for a number of months for vessels of all nationalities, and it was interesting to note that a number of American ships—mostly those controlled by the U.S. Shipping Board—were passing through this waterway and into and out of the Baltic Sea.

On a bright, clear and sharp morning, October 6, we dropped anchor in the outer harbor of Helsingfors, Finland, and during the next few days arrangements were made to land the Children's Colony in Finland and quarter it temporarily at Halila in eastern Finland, while we are finding the parents of children, in and out of Russia.

After four days at Helsingfors the steamer proceeded to a small port called Koivisto, which is not far from the famous Kronstadt, now under Soviet rule. Koivisto is a Finnish port and is used as a port of exchange for Russian and Teuton war prisoners. The Russians are brought in ships here from Austria and Germany and sent across the border of Finland and into Soviet Russia, while the Austrians, Germans and Hungarians are brought out of Russia where they have been for many years in the bleak and terrible prison camps and are taken by train to Koivisto and embarked on the same steamers which brought the Russians up from Stettin, Danzig or Hamburg.

We unloaded the children's colony and its huge bulk of food supplies, clothing and other articles in four days and transported the entire establishment from Koivisto by train two hours to Kuolamajavi, and from Kuolamajavi eleven kilometers to Halila.

WAS FAMOUS SANITORIUM

Halila was a famous sanitorium in the old days of the Czar—perhaps the finest sanitorium in all Russia. It has been closed for several years, but is now being reopened by the Finnish Government and we have been assigned three buildings which will not be used by the sanitorium until next Summer. One of these is a very handsome four story stone and concrete structure beautifully finished inside and containing some marvelous latter day facilities, such as steam heat and bath tubs. The 350 girls of the colony are quartered in this building, while the 425 boys have two small buildings.

The location is in the midst of beautiful pine and birch forests which stretch for many miles on each side, interspered with small villages. Here one gets a delightful glimpse of peasant life, and this whole country is dotted with blue lakes set in the midst of low hills.

Life here is so simple as to be almost primitive and the cost of living is low as judged by American standards, although the arrival of our establishment of more than 900 persons—most of them with the large appetites of healthy growing boys and girls—has already raised the price of foodstuffs in this immediate neighborhood.

Finland is just negotiating a peace treaty with Soviet Russia and the consequent political and industrial discussions make it necessary to move somewhat slowly in the immediate delivery of the Petrograd Colony to their parents, especially as the border between Finland and Soviet Russia is strictly closed and heavily guarded.

CHILDREN GO TO PARENTS

Railroad service between the two countries has been stopped and the International Bridge across the border has been purposely broken, but will be repaired as soon as peace is formally established. Meanwhile we are already repatriating small groups of children to parents outside of Soviet Russia. In France we delivered two children to their parents and one was sent to England.

Five days ago we started a party of four for Reval, Esthonia and, following, a party of nine for Riga. Their relatives were, of course, located beforehand by the American Red Cross and we are now locating relatives for a good many others. The bulk of the parents, however, are undoubtedly in Soviet Russia and we shall at some time, I assume, send in the bulk of the children.

The American Red Cross is doing a great work all over this part of Europe. This under the Commission of Western Russia and the Baltic States, which in turn is under the European Commission, whose headquarters are at Paris.

All but five of the former prisoners of war who were being repatriated by the American Red Cross, and who came from Siberia on the Yomei Maru, have sent to their homes through Copenhagen. Five choose to remain with us a while longer and are employed here at Halila.

There are ten Americans, all from the Siberian Commission, as the American staff of the Petrograd Children's Colony here.

We have operated a hospital and dispensary continuously from the moment the Yomei Maru left Vladivostok until the present. The health record maintained by the Children's Colony on this long sea trip was little short of miraculous. We had no single case of contagious or infectious disease of the quarantinable type and practically no illness of any kind.

We had three deaths en route. One girl died at New York as a result of meningitis following a bite of an insect at Panama. One boy was accidentally killed in New York. One teacher died at sea. She had been ill for years and had undergone a mastoid operation in New York.

During the entire voyage there was daily medical inspection and the dispensary and ambulatory were continuously open to treat any sprains, cuts, bruises and other small mishaps and prevent infections. At no port were we detained because of health conditions, although at some ports there were around us immigrant steamers held up because of disease aboard. Our steamer was more crowded than any of these, but the thorough medical and nursing facilities and the modern American sanitary methods employed, kept the Colony free from disease.

We made another remarkable record in that during not one day of the three months and a day we were at sea was there really rough weather. We had two or three fairly brisk winds, but comparatively calm seas, and even in the Baltic the sea was unusually smooth. During most of the time the ocean was so calm that it was really marvelous.

The Petrograd Children's Colony by now is known all over the world and we are getting inquiries for children from many parts of the world. In New York, France, England and other countries there are families who wish to adopt one or more of these bright and attractive children, but our settled policy is to make every human effort to deliver them to parents before considering adoption, and of course it is desirable that if adopted they should be adopted by Russian families who can give them the physical, mental and moral care they need.

After two years of American Red Cross care, the children are now finding their parents and relatives. The reunions have already begun. Fathers and mothers are being made happy by the recovery of sons and daughters they had in some cases given up for lost and mourned as dead. The happiness of these reunions and the fact that we are delivering to their parents their children, not in the emaciated and listless conditon so common to the undernourished children of war swept Europe, but robust, red cheeked, bright eyed, plump and energetic, constitutes recompense for all the effort that the American Red Cross is putting forth to safeguard and transport the Petrograd children.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) RILEY H. ALLEN.

ROUBLES EMBARGO IS NOW REMOVED

ENDS PROPAGANDA EXCUSE

Resolution Government Should Have No Dealings With Moscow Soviet

Washington, Dec. 20.—Removal of the war-time restrictions against credit transactions with Soviet Russia was announced by the Treasury Department today in the following statement:

"The Secretary of the Treasury and the Federal Reserve Board announce that with the approval of the Department of State and in order to give force and effect to the action of that department in removing restrictions in the way of trade and communication with Soviet Russia as announced by that department on July 7, 1920, all rules and regulations restricting the exportation of coin, bullion and currency to that part of Russia now under the control of the so-called Bolshevist Government or restricting dealings or exchange transactions in Russian roubles, or restricting transfers of credit or exchange transactions with that part of Russia now in the control of the so-called Bolshevist Government, have been suspended, effective December 18, 1920, until further notice."

Great importance is not attached by officials to the action just taken, and it is not their belief that the removal of these credit restrictions will result in the development of any extensive transactions with Russia. Removal of restrictions against trading has not resulted in the revival of trade and the lifting of the credit embargo is expected to have about the same effect.

In the opinion of high officials, the Bolsheviki will now be deprived of the opportunity to use the existence of the credit embargo for propaganda purposes. It has been the contention of the Soviet leaders that these embargoes by the nations have been responsible, to a large degree, for the failure of Soviet Russia to develop trade with the outside world.

It is not the belief of Treasury officials that there will be any dealings or transactions in roubles amounting to anything so long as the Soviet Government is in power.

"There are plenty of unredeemed Confederate paper notes lying around in the coin stores and pawnshops," said one high official tonight," and if there are Americans who want to engage in that sort of transaction they can buy Confederate money instead of Russian roubles."

The removal of the embargo in no way implies a disposition on the part of this Government to enter into relations with the Soviet.

A resolution which expresses it as the sense of the Senate that the United States Government should have no dealings with the Bolshevist Government was introduced in the Senate today by Senator King of Utah. It is generally understood that there are several Senators who favor entering into an agreement with the Bolshevist Government for a resumption of trade.

Exchange Market

Messrs. Maitland, Fearon and Brand's exchange circular for week ending Wednesday, February 2, states:

The London price of silver at 34½ shows a drop during the week of 5¼d. The quotation for two months forward delivery is 34d. New York silver has declined from G.$.66¾ to G.$.57¾. Our rate for T.T. on London has followed with a drop of 6½d. to 3s. 8d.

The end of the Month exchange settlement among the Banks revealed a shortage in Gold cover reported at between three to four million pounds sterling and the Banks were free buyers creating a weak market, until yesterday when our Chinese Gold dealers started offering resales of T.T. on London and America, this, with a certain amount of profit taking in exchange by merchants turned our local market and we close with sellers of Gold T.T. at 3/5½ and G.$.66=; buyers at 3s. 6d. The official quotation remains at 3s. 3d. T.T. on London. Stocks of silver still increase.

Our stocks of silver are reported as follows:

Sycee and Bar Silver Tls. 42,551,000 an increase of Tls. 2,718,000.

Chinese and Mexican Dollars $30,000,000 an increase of $1,390,000.

How England Makes Her Gold Supply Do Double Duty

THE British genius for finance was never better illustrated than it is in the subjoined article from the New York Annalist of December 13. This article traces the careful manipulations whereby in the course of a few months, sterling exchange was built up in New York from (G.) $3.19 to $4.06, so that by last October 15, when the process of liquidation of the $500,000,000 Anglo-French loan, was begun, the British were in position to, and did, save themselves many millions.

This article is of special interest at this time, owing to its forecast of another such movement, and those who have been studying the gold market recently will realise that the things that are happening were clearly foreseen in New York more than a month and a half ago, although the movement, then in its incipiency, was not at the time of writing, meeting with the success of the earlier one. We have only to record, however, that it has since accomplished its purpose, for on December 10, when this article probably was written, the pound sterling was quoted in New York at $3.45 1-2 and yesterday it stood at $3.83. But here is the article, which, by the way, sets forth the present Japanese gold-hoarding movement from what seems to us a very sound point of view:

Despite the popular belief that the great governments of the world have locked up their gold supplies and are carefully guarding them against the time when gold shall have returned to something approximating its pre-war value, as measured in international exchanges and commodity prices, the yellow metal continues to move in considerable quantities.

Within the past three or four weeks something like $25,000,000 in gold has been received here for the account of the British Government, and much mystery surrounds the movement. The bankers to whom the metal was consigned refuse to comment on it and the British Government has nothing to say regarding it. The financial community, always keenly interested in such matters, has several theories, any one of which would account for the shipments. But whatever the cause, it is a graphic demonstration of Britain's entire willingness to use gold freely when, in the opinion of her financial experts, such use will prove beneficial to the general scheme of British finance, governmental and private.

For an example one need go no further back than the beginning of the process of liquidation of the $500,000,000 Anglo-French loan, which fell due here on Oct. 15 last. The British, following their usual custom, started preparations for that operation nearly a year ahead of the maturity date. Probably, if all that they did were a matter of public knowledge, it would be found that the preparations dated even further back. They started shipping gold here in March of this year, seven months before the Anglo-French loan due date, and while the gold then sent was used for another purpose than to pay off the loan, its sending had the result of putting sterling up very sharply from the record low levels it had touched in February, and saved for Britain many millions in the final settlement.

The French, on the other hand, waited until almost the last minute, and so far deferred were their plans that in their final arrangements one was included with the New York Federal Reserve Bank whereby that institution agreed to advance whatever sums might be needed on the final settlement day, against the "ear marking" of gold by the Bank of France. So far as is known, that arrangement was not needed, but it illustrates the difference in the two great European financial systems.

The gold, totaling close to $50,000,000, which England sent here in March and April, was used, primarily, to help the Argentine, but that was not known when the gold was coming in, and, thanks to a very intelligent and intensive propaganda, it was supposed that the metal was coming solely for the purpose of paying off the Anglo-French loan. The result was that sterling exchange, which had been down around $3.19 in the first days of February, rose to $4.06¾ on April 5, and England, buying dollars to accumulate balances here, found her pounds sterling worth infinitely more when the exchange was made than they otherwise would have been.

Now England is sending us more gold, and one of the popular theories in Wall Street is that she again is "killing two birds with one stone." And, incidentally, the Argentine is supposed to be the indirect beneficiary.

During the war Great Britain established some very large credits with the South American countries, and these credits now are maturing. One of them, reported to be in the neighborhood of $100,000,000, is said to fall due Jan. 1, or thereabouts. And the story most generally believed is that Great Britain is making preparations to pay this off at New York, an operation, if carried out, which should help both England and her friend the Argentine.

When the Argentine loan of $25,000,000 and £5,000,000 fell due last May, the Argentine Government first tried to extend the whole loan here, then part of it, and finally, when local bankers and the Treasury Department made it plain that an extension was not desirable from our point of view, arranged with London bankers for an extension. As finally understood, this transaction with London called for an extension of approximately $50,000,000, enough to take care of the maturity, for a period of seven or eight months, and resulted in the shipment of gold, which latter was carefully veiled so as to accomplish the utmost psychological good for the sterling exchange market.

Now what advance is about to mature. Circumstantially, the report grows up very well, for the maturity of the advance of last May apparently was timed to correspond with the maturity of the big British grain credit in January next. Thus, the $50,000,000 advance by the London banks will, if this theory is correct, offset half of the grain credit which the Argentine extended during the active war years, leaving only half of it to be provided for out of new money. And whether that grain credit was termed in sterling or in the currency of Argentina, there would be a considerable saving for England by making payment in gold at New York, for in this market both British and Argentine exchanges are at heavy discounts, and gold always is at par.

New York may be more sophisticated, or there may be other influences at work in the market, but the fact remains that the present gold movement from London to New York is not having the stimulating effect on sterling that the March-April movement did. However, quite without that benefit, the ordinary commercial and exchange profits which will accrue to England would seem to warrant the sending of gold here, assuming that she has the gold and can spare it.

There is another way in which British finance will profit by the export of gold to America. That is in making this market more responsive to new security issues and to the offerings of old security issues. Britain's affiliations, if the term may be used, will have a lot of refinancing to do within the next few years. Canada, alone, has maturities on war debt, to say nothing of maturities of obligations of purely private Canadian enterprises, of slightly more than $600,000,000 between the years 1921 and 1925. A good part of this, it is expected, will be transferred from London and Montreal to the New York market, and if the New York market is to take care of it, the New York market must be got in position to do so.

This would mean "sweetening" the local market, and that process may be best accomplished by adding to the gold reserves. Not that there is any paucity of gold in this country, but if this is to be the great refinancing market, then too much of the metal cannot be had. Also, the sending of gold here creates funds and these funds may be used to take up some of the existing securities here.

England, always looking ahead, sees debts of her own maturing in this market. She has an issue of United Kingdom notes falling due here next November and another issue maturing the following November. These are "secured collateral" notes, and the refunding of them into non-secured notes is one way she has for releasing the collateral. Another is to pay off the debt, thereby not only releasing the collateral, which may be marketed, but also reducing the amounts she must remit here from time to time to meet the interest requirements of these debts.

There are also the British Government Treasury bills afloat in this market. At one time there were upward of $100,000,000 worth of these bills held by American investors. At the present time it is said that the aggregate outstanding is little more, if any, than a fifth of this amount. Thus, Britain has been whittling down her debt on this score and may be expected to continue the operation. In the opinion of many competent bankers it will not be long before the British Treasury bills disappear from the New York market altogether. Will they be making way for some other securities which the British would like to see in the hands of American investors?

The whole thing sizes up in a phrase, used by an international banker, who ought to know, when he was asked recently for information regarding England's international financial plans.

"England," he replied, "will be just about a hundred years ahead of the rest of the world."

In the Far East, in addition to the economic upheavals which have been going on there these last few months, perhaps because of these upheavals, a new gold hoard is being built up. In Japan gold is being rapidly accumulated. Since the beginning of July that country has taken from the United States approximately $75,000,000, and as much, if not more, from other countries. Just now Japan is drawing heavily upon India, where exchange rates are down and gold may be bought at favorable prices. Last week one shipment from Bombay to Tokio was reported of $8,500,000 in gold, and within the last six weeks or two months, private advices have it, the Japanese have taken from Indian markets upward of $35,000,000.

The ostensible reason for this Japanese accumulation is to put Japan in a strong financial position against the contemplated difficulties which may attend the Dec. 31 settlement. If gold strongly held at the State Bank will overcome the settlement troubles, then they should not develop, for today the Bank of Japan is probably the one official institution in the world which has a "gold cover" of more than the amount of outstanding circulating notes. Those who profess to see a "yellow peril" in everything that Japan does are becoming uneasy over the way in which Japan is bidding for gold. They recall that in 1914, months before the world at large suspected the imminence of the World War, the European nations which shortly were to become the great belligerents started drawing down their balances here in America, translating them into gold and moving the gold to Europe. Now they think there is a possibility that Japan is building up gold reserves which may be intended for something more than a contingency fund against year-end settlement troubles.

Others are not so apprehensive, but whether they are or not, Japan certainly is rapidly becoming a factor in gold hoarding, and if the present pace is maintained should shortly be second only to the United States in the sum total of her metallic possessions.

The Homely Simplicity Of The Hardings

By REV. DR. JOHN ROACH STRATON

(Pastor, Calvary Baptist Church, New York City)

As the days have passed since the recent Presidential election the indications have multiplied that both President-elect Harding and his noble wife, who soon will be the "first lady of the land," are bountifully supplied with that homely and yet beautiful and most valuable quality known as "common sense." The Hardings have had, whether they wished it or not, to remain in the spotlight now day after day, and it is reassuring and highly encouraging to see that they have not made a single foolish step nor given utterance to a single foolish thought. There has been an impression of solidity and quiet dignity and sterling moral worth emanating from both of them, which in these disturbed times are most welcome.

To begin with, we all liked the way in which Mr. Harding received the news of his great victory. When the news was brought to the Senator in his simple home at Marion, that he had beyond any question been elected to the Presidency of the greatest nation on earth by the largest popular majority in the history of the country, he said very simply, "It is all so serious. The obligations are so solemn that instead of exulting I feel called to pray to God to make me capable of playing my part, and that all these calls to responsibility may meet the aspirations and expectations of America and the world."

It happened, too, by a happy coincidence, that Mr. Harding's birthday fell upon the day of the election. The employes of his paper in Marion waited upon him in a body the night of the election to bring him a birthday remembrance. They presented to him a printer's rule made of gold, and the expressions that came from the hearts of the men who had been so closely associated with him for so many years were heartfelt and generous. This is the best assurance at last that the American people have of the real character and calibre of the man whom they have elected to the Presidency.

And it was very beautiful to see the way in which Senator Harding received the simple tribute from his employes. Those who were there tell us that he was moved with profound emotion; that he displayed more feeling in connection with that incident than over any other incident connected with his campaign of victory. Tears, we are told, found their way to his manly cheek as he thanked these friends who came to him with their gift and with the congratulations of their loving hearts. He turned to one of them and said, "Miller, I believe we have worked together now for over thirty years." Then he said to all of them that they knew him and that no possible camouflage could get by with them. Then he added a very significant thought when he said, "Just as I have been on the square in my relationships to you, my employes, for all of these years, so I will endeavor to be on the square with all the American people in the heavy responsibilities that soon are to fall upon me."

Not over-whelming intellectuality, not profound scholarship primarily, and not even the perfection of political astuteness are the things that are most needed in America now. The things that we need most are the homely virtues and the great simplicities of life. From what we have seen thus far, Mr. Harding seems to have these things. Character, competence and consecrated common sense will be happily blended in the occupants of the White House after March 4 next—unless we are much mistaken.

GOOD SAMARITANS

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir.—Walking on North Szechuen Road yesterday evening, I witnessed a very respectable act. A Chinese old man, so sick that he could hardly stand, was supported, at the side of the road, by two English-speaking foreign gentlemen who, as some bystanders told me later, were passersby but, on finding the man trembling very heavily and being certainly very sick, supported him for a long time. After awhile the old man was able to tell that he lived near Honan Road bridge. The two foreigners hired a ricksha, gave the coolie ten cents, and bade him to carry the sick man to his home and to take good care of him on the way. Deeds like this deserve tribute. Not for that the man they helped was of my nationality but for humanity's sake, I wish here to pay the two foreign gentlemen my best respects and thanks. Yours truly,

SWAN SENN.

THE ELMAN CONCERT

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir.—Mr. Hurry's critique of the Elman concert was deeply appreciated by at least this reader of your interesting newspaper, not only because of the full justice he accorded this famous virtuoso, but because he did not hesitate to point out several of the management's delinquencies. He instanced the late arrival of the artist and the failure properly to mark the seats. There was one other complaint. Those sitting near the doors were greatly annoyed by the squeaking of them, due no doubt to drafts in the outer hall. Cannot this be remedied between now and next Saturday? Enclosing my card, Yours truly,

MUSIC LOVER.

THE BRILLIANCY OF VENUS

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir.—Will you please correct an error that occurs in my article on page 12, February 1, when it says: "On the 9th of this month Venus will reach her greatest brilliancy." The passage should read: "On the 9th of this month Venus will reach her greatest elongation east. After that she will come nearer to the earth and it will be fully another month before she attains her time of greatest brilliancy." Yours very truly,

ST. ARGA ZER.

LEND A HAND

By Paul Preston

There are goods, of course, one cannot lend, although the borrower be a friend, and one would like to please him; but, howsoe'er that matter stand, we surely all can LEND A HAND, and do our best to ease him.

A rich man might, of course, do worse than put his hand into his purse when someone's badly stranded; but if a fellow's in a mess, a poor man may do more, not less, by helping double-handed.

For, though you may not have a cent (that's not quite literally meant) to lend to friend or neighbor, you may have what he'll value more, though it adds nothing to his store—the power to LOVE and LABOR.

There's something kindly in a hand which I don't fully understand, a sort of magnetism, a friendly grasp, a kindly shake makes life the rainbow's colors take, like light seen through a prism.

And yet I've known CURMUDGEONS who would watch you drown till all was blue and lift a finger never, congratulate themselves, I bet, on keeping DRY when you are WET, and think they're jolly clever.

AUTHORS HOBBIES

CONAN DOYLE

Sir A. Conan Doyle, although apparently a believer in the astral body, has a pair of fists which are by no means spiritual. In fact, the creator of Rodney Stone, that best of all boxing and prize-fighting yarns, is himself no mean exponent of the "noble art of self-defence."

But the originator of Sherlock Holmes in the Admirable Crichton of literary sportsmen, for he has travelled the world over, is a daring mountain climber, can make as pretty a cut through the slips at Lords' as many a professional cricketer, and has scored a good many centuries in his time, can make even the best of lawn-tennis players sit up and take notice, is an indefatigable motorist, is a difficult man to follow across country with the hounds, and can find his way both into and out of a bunker as well as most amateur golfers.

CAPTAIN KETTLE

The greatest traveller amongst modern novelists was poor Jack London; now that he has gone, the man who gave Captain Kettle—C. J. Cutcliffe Hyne—to the world probably holds premier place. If there is any corner of this old earth he has not been into, any desert, or mountain range, any river that he has not seen, any wild beast that he has not shot, then someone should call upon him and tell him of his omission, and he will surely include it in his next trip, seeing that he seems to do a pretty regular ten thousand miles a year, except when there's a world-war on. He believes that a novelist who wants to write "live-stuff" needs to see "live-places. He possesses a collection of hunting trophies.

SIMS, HODGSON, BARRIE

George R. Sims is a great judge of bulldogs and takes a sportsman's interest in trotting ponies; and Ralph Hodgson, the well known poet, is, curiously enough, one of the most successful breeders, and probably the best judge of bullterriers in the British Empire.

Probably the least sporty of British literary men are Kipling, James Barrie and Bernard Shaw. The author of "Mary Rose" is, however fairly useful with the bat, and has often take part in matches as a representative of the Press. Both Shaw and Kipling have spent most of their off-hours mouching about England's lanes on a bike.

COLD CURES

How to cure a cold. Here are one or two ideas on the subject. In fact here are a few remedies one hears of:

Feed a cold (starve a fever.)

Eat next to nothing for two days.

Stay in your room with the windows closed and stick to one temperature.

Get plenty of fresh air into your lungs and keep the windows open.

Wrap up well and avoid baths.

Bathe your chest every three hours in cold water, do not dry your chest, but wrap a towel round it and go to bed.

So it appears there is plenty of choice for us all. Do just what you like and you will be pleasing some one and perhaps the cold will go away, even if you try all the cures.

HOT EGGS

The smart properietor of the grocery in the local village is nothing if not good at repartee.

The other day, rather early in the afternoon one of the good wives, in the neighborhood stepped into the store and inquired:

"Any really fresh eggs?" (Great emphasis on the "really fresh.")

"Oh, yes, ma'am," he replied. "Some just laid this morning."

A day or two later, somewhat earlier in the forenoon than before, the good wife again dropped into the store and inquired:

"Any more of those really fresh eggs?"

Whereupon the grocer cried to his clerk:

"Run to the back room, boy, and see if this morning's eggs are cool enough yet to sell."

The Man I'd Like To Be

BY DAMON RUNYON

Mr. Mencken, or Mr. Nathan, I never can tell one barrel from the other when they fire simultaneously in their brisk magazine, the Smart Set, asks this:

"If, born over again, you had the choice of being any other man living in the world today, which man would you select? I ask the question purely out of idle curiosity. As for me, I'm darned if I can pick one."

The interrogation intrigues me, as Mr. Mencken or Mr. Nathan would say.

Rolling it around in my more or less circular mind, I find, like Mr. Mencken, or Mr. Nathan, that I am unable to make a choice. I can think of any number of men I wouldn't want to be, including the Kaiser, but no particular individual.

However, I can think of a composite of a dozen men living today that would suit me right down to the ground. Born over again, I'd like to be that composite man. Let me tell you about him.

He would be young, say in his early twenties, and, of course, single. He would have the wealth of Vincent Astor, the social entree of the Prince of Wales, and the physique of Jack Dempsey, who stands six feet one inch, and weighs 185 pounds, plus all of Jack's punch-ink power.

He would possess Babe Ruth's knack of hitting runs, Tris Speaker's skill at playing the outfield, and George Sisler's prowess at first base. Naturally, he would pitch like Alexander. He would have the polish of John Drew, be able to sing like Caruso, and act like Jack Barrymore.

He would have Jim Thorpe's football ability, play the piano like Paderewski, and the violin like Mischa Elman. He would have the dancing agility of the Mosconi Brothers, and be empowered to extort sound from a saxaphone like "Peewee" Byers.

He would paint like J. Francis Murphy, write poetry like Kipling, plays like James M. Barrie and stories like Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson. He would be as eloquent as William J. Bryan, and as good looking as Tommy Meighan, the movie actor. He would be able to fly an aeroplane like Eddie Rickenbacker, drive an automobile like de Palma, and have "Dev" Milburn's skill at playing polo.

Some man, my man.

I'd like to be him, but I don't believe that I would care to be any one part of him. It must be nice to have the wealth of Vincent Astor, but for all I know Mr. Astor may have heavy business cares, or be troubled with the hives.

It must be grand to have Ruth's faculty for clouting homers, yet Ruth has to worry no little about the possibility of hurting a fellow ball player by hitting the ball at him too hard.

Caruso's voice is a marvelous gift, but he has to nurse it with an unceasing care that must at times become very tiresome. The eloquence of William J. Bryan can move thousands, but Mr. Bryan cannot knock around the places I can without ruining his reputation.

The social entree of the Prince of Wales is something to consider; however, did I enjoy that entree I would never run across any of my present friends. Thus each integral part of my composite man, standing alone, has some handicap.

I envy many a living man some individual gift, but I wouldn't trade places with him, unless I could take certain belongings of myself with me, and reject some of his possessions.

Incidentally, in making the change it occurs to my mind that there are some of my things that I might like to abandon.

For Fastidious Women

BY RITA STUYVESANT

It is interesting to note among the many women shoppers the great majority will hesitate around the window displaying beautiful underwear; in fact, sometimes it is almost impossible to get a "peek" at the prettiest that are being shown to the admiring crowd. Lingerie displays are riots of soft colors in lovely shades of apricot, delicate peach, turquoise blue, orchid, lettuce green, violet, mauve, rose, corn-color, pale gold and even black.

Heavy georgette appears to be the most popular, and there are exquisite models offered in this lovely fabric. And the gorgeous tinted ribbons and fine laces make one think of fairy queens. One delightful little set consists of stepin pantalettes and an over-chemise. The pantalettes were cut from peach-colored georgette and frilled with fine filet edging about two inches wide. There is an elastic at the belt, and the bottoms are cut up on the sides and tied with dainty blue ribbons. The over-chemise has ribbon shoulder straps, lacy bodice and lace-trimmed bottom.

One beautiful set designed for a Winter bride is fashioned of turquoise blue crepe and made lovely by two-tone ribbon, orchid on the side, faced with pink on the other, and exquisite Venetian lace. This set consists of a pair of full, fluffy bloomers, over-chemise, a dainty nightie, and dance petticoat, with accordion-pleated flounce.

One of the daintiest effects is an envelope chemise and night dress developed in tea rose georgette, that gorgeous shade that blends so beautifully from salmon to faint orange. The envelope has an exquisite bandeau top of lace and fine tucks, and is tied with two-tone ribbon straps. The nightie follows the same design and is held by ribbon straps. The bottom is a bit unusual, flounced and pin-tucked to perfection.

And then there are those wonderful hand embroidered chemises, nighties and petticoats of fine batiste with the faintest satin ribbons run through eyelets. Sprigs of flowers done in close satin stitch are gracefully strewn across the front, and when one scallops the edges and does lone eyelets to slip dainty ribbons through, she may rest assured she has an exceptionally dainty garment that will wear well.

The tailored woman will welcome the pettibockers of Italian silk that have again made their appearance for the Winter. These may be purchased ready-made most reasonably, and are fashioned like long, ankle-length bloomers. These are excellent to wear with the straight tailored suit, and come in all the wanted colors.

BERKMAN LETTER TELLS OF RUSSIA

Missives Are Received By Friends In New York From Him And Emma Goldman

AWAKES ROBBED OF ALL

Even His Trousers Stolen—Woman Describes Collecting Data For History

New York, Dec 5.—Alexander Berkman, the deported Anarchist, awoke one morning in Kieff, Russia, to find, he wrote: "I had neither trousers nor shoes to put on. While we were sleeping I had been robbed, cleaned out completely. Lost three suits, my soldier outfit, splendid Colt revolver and a lot of Soviet and American money, more than half of what I had, as well as a gold watch."

This and other incidents in the life of Berkman and his companion in exile, Emma Goldman, are told in letters by the two sent here to friends.

Berkman's letter is from Moscow, dated Oct. 23, and recounts travels through the Ukraine. Extracts of the letter follows:

"We are terribly sorry we must leave today. Jack Reed's funeral takes place tomorrow, yet it seems impossible for us to attend, much as we should like to pay our tribute to Jack, who suffered much because he understood much, and who died a martyr to the Russian revolution. (John Reed was an American communist, noted for his fiery writings and his adventures).

"If at all possible, we shall countermand the order to attach our car to the train leaving tonight for Petrograd, and for the funeral. Poor Louise is in a highly nervous state. Hope that she does not break down completely. We are with her most of the time. Then, too, we want to see many local friends and comrades, as well as some recently arrived from the United States. Numerous visitors here. The doctor who cared for me in New York last year is here with the party."

TRAVELLED FOR MUSEUM

Berkman and Goldman travelled through Russia on the delegated mission of gathering material for the "Museum of the Revolution," a Soviet institution.

The letter continues:

"The trip was tremendously interesting and instructive and at times a bit exciting too as there was danger of falling into the hands of the Poles, when we were in the war zone, or rather near it. When we were in Poltava, robber bands were raiding the trains, but we passed through without mishap. Unfortunately we did not get to the Caucasus, though that was our schedule. We had to pass through Rostoff on our way there, and that city was then being threatened by Wrangel.

"We visited many cities, villages, etc., and became acquainted with the Ukraine and its people—a beautiful rich country that would prosper in every sense were it not for the perpetual changes of Government and its accompanying bloodshed, destruction and misery. We have been in parts of Urkaine that have had from twelve to fourteen different Governments within the past two years. Everywhere we found rich revolutionary material for the Museum.

"Ethel Bernstein (another Anarchist deportee), is working as a typist in the Foreign Office. Shatoff (another comrade) is in Vladivostok as railroad manager. Just heard that Semenoff escaped in an airship and left the army in the lurch. He is done for. Tobinson of Chicago is Government head in the Far East.

"Winter is beginning here. Already frost. Suffering will be extreme if the blockade is not lifted soon. Lack of clothing and transportation facilities. This letter I fear is very disconnected, written as it is in snatches between telephone calls and visits.

"Do not worry about me. I am O. K."

GOLDMAN'S LETTER

Emma Goldman's letter is from Petrograd and dated a week later. It reads in part:

"We arrived in Petrograd on the 26th. Until this minute, practically, we have been busy looking after our car and the material we brought in it for the Museum of the Revolution. To begin from the beginning, we left Petrograd on our journey on June 30, arriving in Moscow the next day. There were six persons in our party, whose mission was to collect every thing pertaining to the revolutionary movement in Russia since its beginning, including the Dekabrista, and, with it a special attention to the revolutions of 1905 and 1917.

"Besides that we were to collect all materials for purposes of history pertaining to the entire life of Russia since 1917. Within the scope of our work came all printed matter till 1917 and the life of the country since the last revolution."

The letter ends with a more detailed description of the work of the Anarchists in gathering the material.
